A SAFE INVESTMENT FOR YOU

Did you ever try to invest money safely?
Experienced Financiers find this difficult:
how much more so an inexperienced person.

... THE ...

Twenty Payment Life Policy

(With its Combined Insurance and Endowment Features)

ISSUED BY

THE MASSACHUSETTS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

OF SPRINGFIELD, MASS.,

is recommended to you as an investment, safe and profitable. The Policy is plain and simple, and the privileges and values are stated in plain figures that any one can read. It is a sure and systematic way of saving money for your own use or support in later years. Saving is largely a matter of habit. And the semi-compulsory feature cultivates that saving habit. Under the contracts issued by the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company the protection afforded is unsurpassed.

PREFACE

The practical usefulness of the first issue of the American Jewish Year Book determined the Society to continue its publication, with the likelihood that a book of this general nature will be issued annually. There is incorporated with it the Annual Report of the Society, which hitherto appeared as a separate pamphlet, and which will in the future form a regular feature of the Year Book.

The present volume is more than double the size of the first issue. Many new features have been added, though the Directories of American National and Local Organizations again make up the bulk of the volume. The Local Directory in the Year Book for 5660 left so much to be desired that it was decided to make renewed efforts to improve it, and the result has been most gratifying. While nothing approaching perfection has been attained, the Directories are in their present shape fairly satisfactory, and it is not likely that they will be repeated in the next volume. It may be well to say here that the policy of the Society with regard to the Year Book is that each issue shall in the main be made up of new material, and not consist of repetitions with additions of matter already published. Thus it was not deemed necessary to repeat the List of Jewish Periodicals published in the United States which appeared in the Year Book for 5660, the present volume containing only a list of the current periodical publications.

Information in the Directories to which a star (*) is prefixed is not official, although in a majority of cases it is entirely authentic.

Aside from giving the detailed information, for its usefulness to individuals, it has been the object of the Editor to bring together in every field the constituent forces of Judaism and of Jewish life in America. To what uses these can be put in furthering local and national communal organization remains for our leaders in various parts of the country to determine.

By co-operation with the American Jewish Historical Society, a preliminary list of Jewish Soldiers and Sailors who served in the Spanish-American War is given; a special introduction to this list more fully explains its character.

There is no intention to exalt military courage over services to the Republic in civil life, and the biographical sketches of Jews who served in Congress—brought together for the first time—indicates that our people have had an honorable share in making the laws of the Nation.

Jews in America are profoundly interested in the welfare of their brethren in all parts of the world, and it was deemed advisable to publish in condensed form a statement of the ecclesiastical, scholastic and national organizations of Jews abroad, and in view of the interest which centred in France, to devote especial attention to that country and to the great international organization which has its seat in Paris, the Alliance Israélite Universelle.

It is hoped that the List of Books of the Year, as well as the other lists supplied, will serve a useful purpose.

To many friends all over the country, I wish to return thanks for information furnished, but above all to the Secretary to the Publication Committee, Miss Henrietta Szold, to whose painstaking and indefatigable labors much of the accuracy and many of the improvements in this volume are due.

is called 661 (תרכא) according to the short system (לפ״ק). It is a complete Common Year, of 12 months, 50 Sabbaths, 355 days. It begins on Monday, the second day of the week, and the first day of Passover is on the fifth day of the week; therefore its sign is ב׳שה. It is the 18th year of the 298th lunar cycle of 19 years, and the 5th year of the 203d solar cycle of 28 years, since the Creation.

THE YEAR

BY HENRIETTA SZOLD

In the annals of Jewish history, the closing year of the nineteenth century will occupy a prominent though not an honorable place. Marked in Austria by anti-Semitic excesses and "ritual murder" charges, in Galicia by continued distress, in Bessarabia by famine, in Roumania by an accumulation of indignities and hardships, it may almost be said to epitomize the Jew's martyrdom during the Christian centuries. The generation whose years are full goes to the grave with the disappointing knowledge that the visions of '48 were, many of them, will-o'-the-wisps. Yet the prevailing gloom is shot through with gleams of light. Things are not at absolutely their worst when a reputable body of scholars, the Semitic Section of the International Congress of Orientalists, creates the opportunity to declare, in the shadow of the Eternal City, that the "ritual murder" charge is false; when Professor H. L. Strack, a savant whose Christian orthodoxy is distinguished, devotes his leisure to issuing an enlarged edition (the 7th) of his book on the blood accusation, in the hope of enlightening Christians; when Professor Emil Schürer, the authority upon New Testament times, and Professor Bernhard Stade, author of a history of Israel, add their protests voluntarily; and in darkest Bohemia, Professor Th. G. Masaryk, of the Czech University, not a philo-Semite, draws upon himself scorn, ostracism, legal prosecution, and at least temporary suspension from his position, because he cannot resist the impulse to denounce the mediævalism of Polna. As in the case of Dreyfus, the enlightened testify to truth. The action of enlightened men, it will be said, is no test of progress. Such as these safeguarded justice in the most ignorant age. But if wide circles of the people had not been raised to heights undreamed of in the days before Gabriel Riesser and Adolphe Crémieux, Heer T. M. C. Asser, of the Hague, fresh though he was from his labors and honors at the Peace Congress, and eminent though his abilities are, could not have been made sole arbitrator in a dispute between Russia and the United States. Whatever the outrages put upon the Jew here and there, after all Jew-hatred has come permanently to be regarded as an abnormity requiring explanation, and wherever it has the upper hand, it is acknowledged that the mob rules, not the law.

Whether it be the reflex of the unquestioned, secure position held by Jews in many of their abiding-places; or whether it be the one acceptable result of renewed suffering; or whether it issue from the contrast between the two sets of circumstances; it is a fact that the Jew will carry into the new century self-respect that bids fair to span the gulf of degradation between the latter days and the early ones of his history replete with heroic action and noble thought—self-respect that manifests itself not only in national self-consciousness, not only in united defense of the wronged of the race, but also in noble, growing discontent with the discrepancy between the religious theory and its practice. It is the very core and substance of the movement that arouses such antagonism among Jews as fairly to divide them into two camps; even those who condemn the Zionist theory as a counsel of despair concede so much. It is illustrated by the tendency, growing stronger day by day, to form national organizations, to centralize Jewish forces in each country, to create representative bodies. The converse, of course, is equally true; international and national movements inspire self-regarding action. In 1840, when the Damascus affair aroused sympathy in the strong degree in which Jews are capable of the feeling, it required the almost superhuman efforts of Sir Moses Montefiore and Adolphe Crémieux to make Western Jews understand that their human dignity had been outraged. German lethargy yielded not even to the strenuousness of the two self-appointed advocates. Contrast this with what happened the other day. When the Roumanian situation grew acute, at a moment's notice, English, French, German, Austrian, and Roumanian representative Jews met at Paris to deliberate, and with equal promptitude public-spirited individual Jews in the United States organized themselves into a Central Committee with the powers and duties of a representative body during the emergency that looms before Jews. The Alliance Israélite Universelle, the Anglo-Jewish Association, the Israelitische Allianz of Vienna, the Deutsch-israelitischer Gemeindebund, and, in default of an active American central organization for defense, the New York Committee of the Baron de Hirsch Fund, brought close to one another, as they have been, by the ubiquitous activity of the Jewish Colonization Association, stand ready to guard the rights of the outcast or succor the unfortunate. By virtue of their origin and purpose, they may demand as a right the moral and pecuniary support of the Jews whom they represent. Perhaps in the coming century self-respecting organization among Jews will be perfected to the degree that a crisis like the present Roumanian trouble, which long ago proclaimed itself in warning tones, will be met by preventive instead of remedial action.

France is a striking illustration of the sporadic character of anti-Jewish demonstrations. Last year the very hearth of anti-Semitism, it has by no means been an unhappy home to Jews this year. The Republican ministry has opposed an admirably firm front to anti-Semitic excesses in France and Algeria, with the result that the senatorial elections in both countries were most favorable to Jewish security; the Republican candidates obtained 92 seats out of 99. As if to remind the onlooker that anti-Semitism is not yet a dead issue in France, the Nationalists, who include many anti-Semites, carried Paris and Algeria in the municipal elections, though the provinces went strongly Republican. In Algeria the amelioration of conditions is undeniable. Max Regis' farcical attempt to imitate Guérin's Fort Chabrol in his "Villa Anti-Juive" was completely frustrated. True enough, the mock-heroic demagogue seems to be going scot free, but on the whole it is satisfactory that he does not wear the martyr's crown. On the other hand, there is cause for congratulation that wise counsel prevailed in the matter of boycotting the Exposition. Petty shopkeeper's revenge cannot counterbalance the unparalleled miscarriage of justice in the Dreyfus case. The Jew can afford to be magnanimous for the sake of the Frenchmen who share his ardor for justice, nor can he be willing to disregard the claims of France herself upon his gratitude. And if the vigorous revival of religious feeling in France during the past year is attributable to the Dreyfus trouble, the Jew may forget as well as forgive. Fate herself seems to have determined to demonstrate to anti-Dreyfusards the loyalty of French Jews: an unusually large number of young and distinguished Jewish officers in the French army have this year lost their life in the service of their country in the colonies and at home.

In one respect 5660 has a better record than its predecessor. Judaism has not been robbed so ruthlessly of great scholars and faithful devotees. Italy alone has suffered unduly: Rabbi Elie Benamozheg, of Leghorn, the Jewish Plato as he was called, and Rabbi Moses Ehrenreich, both ripe in years and scholarship; the noble senator Isacco Artom; and Attilio Luzzatto, at 49 at the height of a brilliant career as politician and journalist; all these she has lost by death. Barring these losses, the Italian Jews are in the fortunate position of having no history. It is interesting, however, to note that twelve Jews at present have seats in the Italian Chamber of Deputies, and that in the Italian army there are 109 lieutenants and 53 officers above this grade. On the other hand, it is significant that the chief of the new Rabbinical College at Florence, after searching Italy in vain for a competent young assistant, was compelled to resort to Breslau to secure one, and that the president of the Leghorn community, in trying to fill the place left vacant by Rabbi Benamozheg, sends to rabbis in the United States the request that candidates present themselves or be recommended. Such changes are wrought by the centuries! One understands why a few years ago Rabbi Ehrenreich felt compelled to resign his post in Rome on account of the religious indifference of the Jews.

In the matter of anti-Semitism a step forward has been taken in Germany. The elections in Baden for the Diet and in Berlin, where Stöcker himself was defeated, were little short of disastrous to the anti-Semitic party. It is a nice question to decide whether the gain has not been entirely wiped out by the blood accusation of Konitz (West Prussia) and the disturbances to which it gave rise in the neighboring districts. Yet Konitz itself illustrates the advance since Xanten. On the whole the press has been on the side of enlightenment, and it is due to the Emperor's energetic initiative that the military intervened promptly, and confined the excesses to a restricted locality. Konitz teaches, however, that though the "ritual murder" charge is far older than anti-Semitism, there can be no doubt that the prevalence of the latter causes the recrudescence of the former. The result is inevitable when refined, calculating hatred plays upon crass ignorance. The theories of the scientific anti-Semite are applied to real life by practical Jew-hatred. Certainly the warning of the Verein zur Abwehr des Anti-Semitismus, that the poison has not been eliminated from the German body politic, should not be scorned, when in Berlin, the citadel of disciplined intellectuality, a representative of the people can dare address an interpellation to the government demanding the production of evidence that the "ritual murder" charge is baseless! In Hessen the Jews petition for the execution of the law providing that the holding of public office shall be independent of religious confession, and in Wurtemberg they urge a revision of the laws affecting the legal status of Jews. Half a century apparently has not sufficed to carry out the program of '48. In the internal affairs of Judaism, the question that has claimed closest attention is the religious instruction of Jewish children, especially the devising of a system that shall fit in with the plan of the various grades of the Volksschule. In connection with all such public concerns German Jews will miss the sagacity of Sanitäts-rath Dr. S. Kristeller, a cultured, sympathetic, and active Jew, honorary president of the Deutsch-israelitischer Gemeindebund, who passed away within a few weeks after the celebration of his eightieth birthday. Berlin was rich in birthday celebrations this year: Professor Morris Steinschneider's 84th, Dr. S. Neumann's 80th, and Fräulein Jenny Hirsch's 70th.

Optimism receives its rudest shock in Austria. The wealth of indictments against anti-Semites, against the Church, against political parties, against the government, against the Jews themselves, is so abundant that the reviewer finds it difficult to select particulars illustrative of a general proposition. The Leitmotif in the symphony of confusion is ineradicable hate. Hungary is restive; in German Austria and Bohemia the race-elements are unchained; unprogressive greed dictates a mediæval policy to the municipalities; differences of language, religion, and opinion constitute valid reasons for the most violent antagonism, which hastens to translate itself into equally violent action. Everything portends a cataclysm, and in the midst of the conflict stands the Jew the scapegoat, his bloody welts showing the brand of every faction. No one seems able to cope with any phase of the trouble. The Empire is typified by its gentle old monarch. Broken by sorrow, his Empire visibly dropping away from his dynasty, he awakens as much pity by his intellectual inability to grasp the situation, as by his personal griefs. Unlike the German Emperor, he effects nothing by his word. Michalina Araten's distracted father appeals successfully to his sympathy, but in vain to his power. Perhaps it is true, what some maintain, that his conciliatory manner, left unsupported by effective action, cloaks anti-Semitic leanings, and perhaps it is this duplicity that gives the cue to his ministers when they promise deputation after deputation of Jews relief that never comes; that inspires tolerance of shameless anti-Semitic onslaughts in the legislative halls; that makes the secular authorities weakly repeat the old "non possumus" of the Church when girls disappear behind convent walls; that annually sends 5000 Jewish Galician laborers to a famine death; that permits 500 Jewish families in 40 communities in Bohemia and Moravia to be ruined utterly, and commutes the sentence of the instigators of the riots; that silences the so-called liberal party in all Jewish affairs; that awards the highest civic distinctions to the notorious Father Deckert; that keeps the government inactive in the Polna affair; that refuses to be outraged when Schneider demands in the Reichsrath that rabbis and ritual slaughterers be put under surveillance at the approach of the Passover season. For love of Austrian geniality and good humor, one prefers to believe it due, not to duplicity, but to sheer impotence. All this were, if not bearable, at least not degrading, if the Austrian Jews themselves were not supine, almost traitorous. Until the "ritual murder" charges brought them to their senses, German and Czech Jews were arrayed against each other. The Jewish Galician deputies, of whom there are a number in the Chamber, are arrant cowards, who will not speak out, because they are beholden to a Galician oligarchy. In the debate on the riots, which was at once turned into a debate on the truth of the blood accusation, the Social Democrat Berner, a Jew, instead of criticising the government for not having crushed the disorders in their germ, criticises it for ordering the soldiery to fire upon the rioters on account of a few broken windows—an attitude different from that formulated by the Socialist Congress at Paris, which denounced anti-Semites and Nationalists, and warned the working-classes against all forms of reaction. Daily the cases of baptism increase. A Galician bishop recently could dare advise Araten to wait upon the Pope, who, he said, would not think it worth while to arouse the enmity of a whole people, because "there are to-day sufficient Jews who voluntarily convert themselves, that it is not necessary for us to compel a Jewish girl to accept baptism against the wishes of her parents." This judgment is erroneous, for recent reports tell of frequent repetitions of the Araten case, or it may not be the opinion of a bishop at all, but it is true so far as it describes conditions among Austrian Jews. Even many of those who do not take the last step of baptism, speak of their Jewish affiliations with bated breath and shy glances. Austrian Jews alone of all bodies of Jews seem to lack the self-respect that characterizes the Jews of the end of the century. Why the most cowardly of them did not thrill to the very marrow when Chief Rabbi Güdemann publicly, at a mass meeting of 3000 persons, pronounced the oath—the oath of Manasseh ben Israel and Moses Mendelssohn—declaring the "ritual murder" charge a fabrication, we others fail to understand. Yet the Austrian Jews are to be pitied even more than blamed. We others who do not understand, perhaps do not know. At a distance, only the fracas of the Kuttenberg trial is heard; the student of Austrian conditions can tell of Goltsch-Jenikau, of Oderberg, Czorkow, Wildenschwert, Nameszto, Nachod, Neu-Sandec, and Cracow. Scarcely a week passes in which the ugly lie does not rear its head here or there, offspring of malice, of sordid and jealous poverty, or simply fanatical ignorance. Grim as it is, the situation has its humorous developments. Professor Masaryk is indicted for writing a pamphlet disproving the blood accusation, which is confiscated. At the trial so many passages must be adduced by the defense and by the prosecution that the pamphlet, practically in its entirety, is in the hands of the public through the newspaper reports of the trial—the ironical triumph of modern over mediæval methods.

The outlook is unrelieved gloom. Anti-Semitic domination in Vienna is secured for some time to come by the new Municipal Franchise bill, a gerrymandering measure, and the Vienna municipal elections that followed close upon its passage were favorable to the anti-Semitic party. Moreover it seems almost certain that Catholic Austria has been selected as the first or the second scene of an international propaganda on the part of the Church. At all events, the Catholic press has been aiding and abetting fanaticism; the inferior clergy have openly acted as accomplices in the "ritual murder" troubles; and with two exceptions—one of them Dr. Theodore Kohn, Prince Archbishop of Olmütz, the grandson of a Jew—the higher clergy have kept unbroken silence. Not to leave the subject in total darkness, the few facts that may charitably be interpreted as promises of better things are here collected: The Crown Prosecutor could not see sufficient grounds for the criminal libel action against Chief Rabbi Güdemann on the charge of having vilified the Catholic Church by his denial of the blood accusation. The editors of two anti-Semitic papers were convicted of misdemeanors in connection with the "ritual murder" agitation, and the Crown Prosecutor seized the occasion to denounce the charge, the first judicial functionary to do so. A priest-teacher in Vienna cautioned his girl-pupils not to associate with their Jewish companions, giving as the reason that Jews kill little Christian girls and use their blood; the Minister of Education interfered. In the Hungarian Parliament, in which fourteen Jews have seats, derisive laughter met the deputy who expressed belief in the blood accusation. If anything can, that burst of laughter will save the situation.

Weary of Austrian prejudice and stupidity, the eye turns away only to be met at the borders of the Empire by the gaunt yet resolute victims of Roumanian faithlessness. 260,000 Jews minus 900 outlawed! Their children shut out from the advantages of the education for which they have paid the state with their blood and substance; not permitted to open schools of their own, or, when permitted, forced to obey government regulations as to when, how, and how much Hebrew is to be taught; yet paying taxes more excessive than those levied on other citizens, and serving in the army out of proportion to their numbers; their talents and skill stifled from lack of an outlet in the professions, the trades, the state employments, the ordinary occupations not usually regarded as privileges, they have but one thought—to flee from the hell in which they are burnt without being consumed. To Cyprus, where Mr. Davis Trietsch insists they can readily establish happy homes; to Anatolia; to South Africa, war-stirred though it is; to England, to Canada, to the United States; anywhere the bands of pedestrian emigrants are willing to go, if only the refuge is not called Roumania. This is worse than Austria. The law need not be perverted or administered by prejudice in order to work harm; the law itself is the guarantee of injustice, the instigator of violence. Unlike the Austrian, the Roumanian Jews awaken more than pity, they awaken respect, and Roumania seems less callous than Austria—she has the grace to be ashamed or afraid; she is beginning to mumble apologies about economic crises, etc. The final word cannot be spoken; history is making itself under our very eyes. One thing, however, is certain: the way in which it is made will be the touchstone of the sterling worth not alone of Roumania and the Roumanian Jews, but of the Jews in every country of the world.

Roumania's neighbor, infected with the disease of anti-Semitism, is taking determined steps to stamp it out. In Bulgaria, anti-Semitism has been sufficiently assertive to impel a deputation of Sofia Jews to wait upon the Minister of the Interior and warn him of the danger to the state itself. Prompt measures were at once taken by him to prevent an anti-Semitic paper and club from carrying on their nefarious propaganda. In spite of his admirable attitude the agitation continued, and he addressed a circular to the several prefects, charging them not to permit any infringement of religious freedom, and warning them that he would hold them personally responsible for consequences resulting from failure to adopt timely measures.

The Russian agony we have with us always. A few palliatives have been administered: There is talk of extending the Pale of Settlement from ten to twelve Governments; the distance from the frontier at which Jews may dwell has been reduced from fifty to forty versts; the Jewish colonists of Cherson and Ekaterinoslaw received permission to extend their territory; forty-five instead of four Jewish students may hereafter enter the faculty of chemistry at the University of Charkoff; Jews outside of the Pale may purchase land; the first guild merchants may buy property in the towns of Courland; Russian Jews settled in colonies by the Jewish Colonization Association will be considered Russian subjects until naturalized in their new homes; the Nikolaieff rioters were severely punished—in sharp contrast with the action of the Roumanian courts, which allotted a nominal punishment to the Jassy rioters, and meted out long terms of imprisonment to the Jews who defended themselves, and thus, it is alleged, became the cause of the disturbances. These and similar petty favors are more than offset by irksome restrictions: In Kieff Jewish children must attend school on the Jewish holidays; the onerous meat and candle tax is made more burdensome than ever, and—in spite of the fact that after much petitioning the government granted 10,000 roubles from it for the Jewish sufferers by the flood in Elizabethgrad—less than ever is devoted, as originally intended, to the purposes of the Jewish communities; no Jew can receive a certificate as private teacher; Jewish butchers may reside only within the Pale; the merchants of the various guilds remain perennial objects of annoying regulations; Jews are refused permission to settle in the Caucasus; they may not rent summer residences in the forest adjacent to Kieff, nor visit it without a special permit; and in Bessarabia the funds collected by Russian agencies for the relief of the famine-stricken are withheld from Jewish sufferers. Obviously there is enough chicanery, if not downright persecution, to explain why emigration to Argentina continues unabated. Whatever their grievances, Russian Jews, patriots despite everything, not only fulfil their civic tasks, but expend generosity upon their very enemies. Their wealthy men, like Herr Posnánsky, who died during the year, endow educational institutions, often with the proviso that their benefits shall accrue to all creeds alike. Recent statistics of the army disprove the aspersion that Russian Jews shirk military duty. In the past year, 16,827 were accepted for service. By the establishment of schools—this year elementary schools in particular—the founding of agricultural colonies, and the creation of opportunities for industrial training, they are helping the Russian government to solve the Russian Jewish problem there where some Jewish leaders, rightly or wrongly, maintain that it must be solved, namely, on Russian soil. Nor has Russia cause to complain of what Jews of talent are doing for her fair fame abroad; at the Paris Exposition, for instance, Jewish sculptors are adding greatly to her reputation in art. In the affairs of Judaism as distinct from Jews, the old activity has suffered no diminution. It is an encouraging sign that the Crown Rabbis have formed a union into which the others will be drawn, and that the Teachers' Seminary at Wilna turns out from twelve to fourteen graduates annually. The Jewish presses are as prolific as ever. One of their products, the first volume of a History of Russian Jews in Russian deserves special mention as a notable monument of self-respect. Elsewhere the work will be awaited with eagerness in the hope that it will offer the knowledge no history of the Jews has yet supplied. Such actions and conditions cannot fail to produce some sort of good effect, the first premonitions of which show themselves in the just treatment accorded Jewish questions by the highest judicial and legislative bodies, and in the more and more outspoken opposition of the best men in the Czar's realm to the governmental policy with regard to the Jews.

After it has been stated briefly that in Persia, though no glaring facts can be adduced, the situation remains tense; that the difficulties constantly arising in Morocco must still be allayed by the appeals of the victims to the intervention of France, England, and the United States; that Turkey takes every opportunity to increase the severity of her decrees against Jewish immigrants; the reviewer may enjoy the satisfaction of setting his face toward England and America.

When, however, it is said that the chronicle of Jewish happenings in England can fairly be summed up in two wars, it might seem at first blush that the relief can hardly be great at having turned away from Bucharest, Boryslaw, and Kieff. Energy and enthusiasm in English Jewry have been enlisted entirely in the war in South Africa and in the war of words raging about the authenticity of the Hebrew Ben Sira. It is erring amiably on the side of gratitude, if Jews, mindful of their debt to England, espouse her cause without enquiring too diligently into the justice of her quarrel. Morris Rosenfeld, whom England is at present borrowing from America, echoes the Jew's attitude in his recent English poem. That English Jews should occupy themselves with keeping a record of Jewish valor on the battlefield and of Jewish devotion to country through word, means, and blood is all the more justifiable as Jewish disabilities in the Transvaal act as a toil to English liberality, and as voices make themselves heard attributing the war to the cupidity of Jewish capitalists.

The journey from England to America has of late been made an easy transition. English Jews confess that the "Committee on Education and Publication" called into existence by their Jewish Historical Society was patterned after the Jewish Publication Society of America. Their "Jewish Study Circles," in working order since March, are avowedly the outcome of the visit of delegates of the Council of Jewish Women to London fifteen months ago. Lately the father-ship has been fastened upon the Jewish Chautauqua; in either case the inspiration is American. The agitation in favor of women on the Council of the London Board of Guardians was promoted by references to the example of American Charities. The connection between the two countries is a give-and-take relation. If the United States supply movements, England sends America her literary men and women or their works. Mr. Israel Zangwill came with his play; Mr. Joseph Jacobs was attracted to New York by the Encyclopedia; Mr. Samuel Gordon has written a novel for the Jewish Publication Society, and Miss Nina Davis, a book of translations of Hebrew poems.

In the United States the key-note of self-respect was sounded with bugle-tones at the very beginning of the year, when Mr. Israel Zangwill's "Children of the Ghetto" was put upon the boards at the National Theatre in Washington. Its production was an event, not merely a literary event—an aspect that can only be touched upon in a review of this sort—but in the sense in which the conquest of a country is an event. Whether the critics admired, or whether the critics condemned—and both admiration and condemnation were dispensed with overflowing measure—the criticism grew out of the question: How does this play written by a Jew of Jews, who knows Judaism and Jews alike, who is in sympathy with Jews intellectually at least, and who has a cunning hand, how does this play which does more than merely skim the surface of the Jewish character affect the Jew in his own eyes? Does he or does he not recognize his own flesh and blood, or does he repudiate the poet's creation, in spite or on account of its truth? Apparently another issue was raised: How does it affect him in his relation to his fellow-citizens of other faiths? In the last resort the two questions have but one answer. Whatever raises the self-respect of the Jew raises him in the esteem of the community. Mr. Zangwill's play did more: it created self-respect in Jews long lost to all sense of affiliation with the body Jewish.

In America as in England, the happy political and economic conditions—happy at least from the point of view of the Jew's security and as compared with conditions prevailing elsewhere—give scope to a full development of the communal and religious life. The consequence is that, although the rosy view of Judaism in America held by foreigners, by even so discerning a man as Professor Lazarus, cannot be endorsed wholly by those close to its shortcomings, yet the rankest pessimist must admit that so long as the present spirit prevails, the danger of stagnation is removed, and he must indulge the hope that sooner or later it will take unto itself the steady aim and conscious purpose that make activity godlike.

Without pressing the point too closely, the events of the Jewish year in the United States may be classified under three heads: the philanthropic, the social, and the religio-scientific.

The Old World has for many years been setting the Jews of the New World difficult problems to solve. They must try to remedy in detail what the civilization of Europe perpetrates in the wholesale. Arduous as is the task, it has its compensations. There can be no doubt that the questions raised by the Russian immigration have placed the Jewish community of the United States in the vanguard of the best charitable and philanthropic endeavor of the day. Munificent gifts by individuals are only beginning to be made, and though the past year gave evidence of the growth of the commendable habit, the Christians of the United States and the Jews of Europe, with their wealth of older establishment, are still examples to be emulated. But as a community, the Jews come up fully to the height of their exacting duty. Jewish industrial, technical, and agricultural schools, Jewish administration of relief funds, and Jewish hospitals are looked upon as models. Above all, the problems presented by the Russian exodus to America have given Jewish charity leaders in the United States a grasp of economic questions, of immigration, of housing of the poor, of preventive treatment of disease, that amply repays for expenditure of time and means. Much of this educative influence is not self-generated; it issues from the broad-minded and systematic administration of funds granted the United States by Baron de Hirsch. However, what has been conceded above is by no means to the discredit of a community so young that only this year the United Hebrew Charities of New York, not the oldest, but the most prominent union of city charities, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of federation. It needed the discipline and experience of city unions during a quarter of a century to ripen the national charities into readiness for federation. The National Conference of Jewish Charities, since its first regular meeting in June an accomplished fact, is the incarnate expression of the charitable endeavors, the philanthropic insight, the race solidarity transcending religious differences that have been cultivated by American Jews. It is significant that almost simultaneously with the realization of a National Conference, a tardily awakened sense of responsibility towards the annually increasing number of unfortunates who seek the salubrious climate of Colorado, has led to the nationalization of the Jewish Hospital for Consumptives at Denver. It has been in good working order for some time, and its existence is doubtless assured. Its success and the alleviation it will afford sufferers must in time lead to other national institutions similar in character. Already a society has been formed at Hot Springs, Arkansas, whose object is to acquaint the Jews of the United States with the suffering of poor patients who seek the springs for relief.

The field of charitable work cannot be left without giving a word to a development, distinctly marked, that has been going on for some years, and has now culminated in many of the larger cities. In Boston, in New York, in Baltimore, in Chicago, in Philadelphia, institutions have been or are about to be created that duplicate the hospitals, the orphan asylums, the homes for the aged, established a generation or two ago. What impels this parallel movement among Russian Jews is dubious—whether the older asylums are not conducted with due regard to religious feeling; whether the social division line between the two classes is as sharp as some maintain; or whether the desire to prove their mettle exists on the part of those currently regarded as beneficiaries par excellence. The movement may be ill-advised—though there may be two views on the subject—it certainly is not discreditable.

From charity to philanthropy and social science is but a step. The congested districts of New York City offer a field to the reformer that were enviable if it were not frightful. One of the saddest aspects is that with which the New York Section of the Council of Jewish Women has been trying to deal. In itself the attempt does not yet deserve particularization, and it is introduced here only as typical of the activities of the Council viewed as a collection of Sections. However the leaders may protest, the Triennial Council of Jewish Women, held at Cleveland in March, demonstrated that in all the communities in which the Council has obtained foothold, it is a social and philanthropic power, and only in so far as the amelioration of social conditions and the improvement of methods of charity make for religious growth is it a religious power. The attempt to force upon it the Sabbath issue, through its unwillingness to charge itself with a question that baffles specialists, proves that its religious influence is and properly must remain of the impalpable sort that cannot be summed up in a report or in a preamble and resolution. Without hypocrisy and missionary methods, an organization of its sort cannot serve the purposes of a positive creed. As a representative body, it has enabled Jewesses as such to participate in the deliberations of national and international associations of women and in the National Relief Work during the Spanish-American War. In the chaotic condition of Jewish opinions, and in the face of the strong feeling of many Jews against a formulation of beliefs, it would have been too much to demand that the Council represent Judaism as well as Jewish women. It is no slight achievement that the Council has compassed, the influencing of English Jewesses to form Study Circles, which, however, can in no sense be taken as an evidence that the central idea of the Council organization has been adopted abroad.

If the Council can boast of having taught the Old World a lesson, the Quinquennial Convention of the Independent Order B'nai B'rith at Chicago, in all its best results, will stand a monument to European influences. To the outsider, at least, the convention centred about the delegate from the European lodges, Herr Siegmund Bergel. The long awakened knowledge that the European branches had risen higher than their American source, was made incarnate in Herr Bergel, and visibly impelled the Districts in the United States to consummate an alliance with the Jewish Chautauqua, in the expectation of so making the Order an engine of enlightenment to 30,000 Jews, as the lodges in Austria, Germany, and Roumania have been to their constituents. Again, Herr Bergel's acquaintance with the misery of the Jews in some of the European states was the immediate cause of the resolution pledging the imposing array of B'nai B'rith lodges in America to the support of the European lodges in the measures of relief decided on for Roumanian and Galician sufferers. At the moment of writing the pledge is being redeemed, in part at least, by the formation of a Chicago Roumanian Relief Committee consisting of B'nai B'rith leaders. Whatever one may think of secret orders, of their insurance feature, of pledges of brotherhood that do no more than iterate natural duties, one cannot remain unmoved by the display, such as was made at the Quinquennial Convention, of organized forces in the whole world of European civilization ready to be used for good or for evil.

The death of Isaac Mayer Wise, full of years and honors, is herewith put on record. We are too close upon his time—some of us too much under the spell of his personal magnetism, others of us too antagonistic to his religious views and his methods—to venture upon a helpful estimate of his influence. The book issued by two of his most capable disciples shows how far afield the attempt may stray at present. Neither eulogy nor fault-finding serves a purpose when a figure that has filled a large space upon the canvas fades out. The strenuous effort now being made to raise a fund of $500,000 in order to establish upon a firm basis the institution which, among all his creations, he cherished most fondly, the Hebrew Union College, must be mentioned as a fact, and because it illustrates a recent and satisfactory development in the Jewish character in the United States. Due either to better regulated and more prosperous conditions in the Jewish communities; or to the larger facilities for secular education of which Jews are availing themselves; combined with the transplanting of Russian-Jewish ideals to American soil, there is a distinct recognition of the necessity of fostering Jewish scholarship. Whether the two theological seminaries are leading or following in this movement, about them as centres is crystallizing the desire to give Jewish scholarship a home in the United States. American Jews are bold—their hands reach forth for the very best European culture has to show to-day. Moreover, the desire is not confined to the aristocracy of Jewish intelligence. It has found lodgment in the heart of the people, and reveals itself in the formation of Council and Chautauqua Circles for study, however elementary and superficial their work; in the favor in which the Jewish programs of the Educational Alliance and the Young Men's Hebrew Associations of New York and Philadelphia are held; in the rapid multiplication of Hebrew Free Schools; in the newspaper discussions opposing the rabbi as pastor to the rabbi as scholar; in the Jewish religious teachers' unions, which eventually will create an irresistible demand for the establishment of regular courses for teachers at the theological seminaries, such as all the European institutions of the kind have inaugurated; and in the recurrent project of a monthly magazine or quarterly review formulated by a number of agencies—by the Central Conference of American Rabbis, by the Society of American Cantors, by the Jewish Publication Society of America, and by venturesome individuals. The most striking evidence that the desire for Jewish scholarship is real and widespread is the willingness of an unbiased outsider to risk a large capital in the promotion of the Jewish Encyclopedia. The group of scholars which this work has brought together, recruiting them from abroad and from every part of the United States, would of themselves create the genial atmosphere in which Jewish science can flourish. Supported as they are by popular demand and effort, it seems reasonably certain that in the not too distant future the United States will become a centre of Jewish scholarship.

On the distinctly religious field, it is in the nature of the case that no clear-cut facts can be enumerated. The old problems and issues are in the same undecided, expectant state in which they have long been, and the Sabbath question remains the crux. Among religious leaders in the larger communities the sense of responsibility towards Jews living scattered in country towns and districts has been more acutely developed. These scattered Jews themselves are demanding that inspiration be brought to them from the centres of Jewish population. They put themselves into communication with the Chautauqua, they demand text-books, they pin their faith to circuit preaching, they establish amateurish religious schools—and they do not employ nor show any disposition to employ regularly trained and regularly salaried Jewish teachers.

In literature the output has not been great. Two of the books issued by the Jewish Publication Society bear names among the most illustrious that contemporaneous Judaism has to offer—Israel Zangwill ("They that Walk in Darkness") and Moritz Lazarus (Translation of the "Ethics of Judaism"). The success of the Society's new venture, the Year Book, may be taken to be attested by the present volume. The Jewish Historical Society published a specimen of the Mexican Inquisition documents in its possession. Dr. Marcus Jastrow's Talmudic Dictionary continues to grow towards completion, and the publication of Menahem M. Dolitzky's book of poems puts the United States in the rank of countries producing literature in Hebrew.—

At the time of writing, the Fourth International Congress of Zionists is assembled in London, in the glare of the world's metropolis, under the fire of criticism of trained and not too friendly observers. Over and beyond the increase in the number of adherents, which has been considerable, certain events of the year, not touched upon in the foregoing account, have rejoiced and encouraged Zionists. Last March there met at Frankfort on the Main, at the call of the Chovevei Zion Associations, all the societies interested in the colonization of Palestine. Three months earlier it had been announced that the colonies in Palestine whose existence was owing to the munificence of Baron Edmond de Rothschild, were about to be ceded to the Jewish Colonization Association. These occurrences have one meaning: Palestine colonization has passed from the stage of a private charity to that of world-wide philanthropy; from the stage of an experiment to that of an enterprise whose publicity precludes long-standing maladministration, or even the long-standing imputation of maladministration; from the stage at which every traveler's tale about the fertility or barrenness of the soil, the salubrity or noxiousness of the climate, is accepted as endorsement or condemnation, to the stage at which, for better or for worse, Palestine colonization is a fact. This transition is the achievement of Zionism. If the Fourth were to be the last of the International Congresses, the centralized efforts to establish, on a permanent and wise basis, colonization in Palestine, which before political Zionism came was desultory and dilettante, would suffice to give the movement an honorable place. Political Zionism has forced Philanthropic Zionism into self-conscious assertion and dignity.

Simultaneously with the news of the assembling of the Congress comes the news of the stampede among Roumanian Jews: of the panic that has not only seized the fugitives, but has paralyzed the agencies of help; of the lack of provision made at Vienna, for instance—another illustration of Austrian lethargy—for their reception; of the hopelessness that possesses the outcasts at the idea of returning to Roumania; of the utter inadequacy, in the face of so frightful a crisis, of organizations whose purpose is remedial not preventive—a criticism directed, not against the organizations, but against the authors of a situation so horrible that it cannot be met by any existing force. Is it despair, or is it warm-hearted and statesmanlike foresight that inspires the assembled delegates with the belief that self-respect and self-preservation make imperative the step from philanthropic to political Zionism?

The century closes dark, but in the habitations of the Jews there is light. The nations are staggering under the incubus of the "ritual murder" charge and anti-Semitism, of wars in the South and in the East, of imperialistic designs and lust of land. However much he may share in the prevailing degeneration, the Jew steps into the new century still conscious of his mission, occupied with the questions, political, social, ideal, that are at once summed up and solved in the word Zion—Zion, that is, the mountain of the house of the Lord, to which the nations shall flow to be taught the ways of the God of Jacob, and to walk in His paths.

JUDAISM IN FRANCE FROM JUNE 1, 1899 TO JUNE 1, 1900

BY RABBI LOUIS GERMAIN LÉVY

Since the Dreyfus affair, anti-Semitism has had its day in France, and it certainly was not the fault of the followers of Drumont, Guérin, and their associates that most annoying measures were not taken against the Jews, and that barbarous scenes of violence were not presented in the streets of la Ville-Lumiére. Fortunately, the Republicans, though they set the pace, finally realized that anti-Semitism was only a mask for all sorts of reactionary movements, and that the Church pulled the wires. Now that the eyes of the public are opened, the height of the danger is passed. However, the discontented are numerous, the narrow-minded and foolish are legion, clericalism is clever in availing itself of wicked notions under cover of pure virtue and shining patriotism, and French Jews will have long and severe conflicts to undergo before they reach the end of their troubles. But we are confident that nothing will deter them in the struggle for freedom of conscience and for the rights of the individual, and that they will take first place among those fighting for liberty and justice.

The events that marked the last twelve months will now be briefly narrated.

In June long, interesting debates on anti-Semitism in Algeria took place in the Chamber of Deputies. M. Barthou, Moderate, and M. Rouanet, Socialist, condemned anti-Semitism. Mm. Marchal and Morinaud, deputies from Algeria, charged the Jews with the worst offenses. The governor-general, M. Laferrière, declared himself in favor of a revision of the electoral law for the Jews made French subjects in 1870, and for the foreigners that have been French subjects since 1889. M. Viviani, Socialist, attacked anti-Semitism. With the fall of the Dupuy ministry, the Algerian question was indefinitely postponed.—The Court of Cassation concluded the revision of the Dreyfus trial, and referred the matter to the Court Martial at Rennes.—At Versailles a band of young men threw stones at the synagogue and at the rabbi and the warden, seriously wounding the latter.

In August a duel arising out of anti-Semitism took place at St. Germain-en-Laye (near Paris) between two quartermasters of the 18th Chasseurs, Biancarelli and Klein. Klein, a Jew, was killed.—The trial at Rennes was opened.—From the time of the arrival of the prefect Lutaud and the accession of the ministry de défense republicaine, the troubles in Algeria ceased.

In September the verdict of the Court Martial at Rennes was rendered. Anti-Semitic excesses occurred in different cities. The President of the Republic signed the pardon of Dreyfus.

In October M. Méline, ex-president of the Council, delivered an important speech in the Vosges, in which, though blaming the promoters of the agitation for revision, he scourged anti-Semitism, "that new disease."

In December the Socialist congress unanimously adopted a resolution of citizen Brunellière tending to condemn the anti-Semites and Nationalists.—M. Morinaud, anti-Semitic deputy from Constantine, addressed an interpellation to the minister of war on the subject of the military medal accorded on July 14 to M. Brunswick, quartermaster of the third African Chasseurs. General Galliffet replied: "Quartermaster Brunswick, it is true, is a Jew. That affects me in absolutely no way. If a soldier is deemed worthy of a reward by his superior officers, I will give it to him, be he Jew or Christian."

In January, 1900, partial elections for the Senate took place. Mm. Paul Strauss and Edward Millaud, Jews, were re-elected on the first ballot. General Mercier was elected.—The Assumptionist Fathers, who in their journal, La Croix, preached most violent hate against the Jews, were condemned.

In March the Jewish captain Raine de Falaise was the object of infamous accusations on the part of two superior officers and a subaltern of his regiment. As the result of strict investigation, the accusations were recognized as slanderous; one officer was degraded, another disciplined, and the subaltern cashiered.

In May, during the municipal elections, the Nationalists gained a striking victory at Paris, but in the provinces the results were more satisfactory.

Judaism in France has this year lost some striking personalities: in June, 1899, M. Bédarrides, first honorary president of the Court of Cassation and vice-president of the Central Consistory; Aron, colonel of artillery, commander of the Legion of Honor. In July Baroness Nathaniel de Rothschild; Solomon Braun, lieutenant of marine artillery, killed at Chari while with the Bretonnet mission, of which he was second in command. In November M. Joseph Cohen, journalist, who died at eighty-two years of age; he published Les Déicides (1st edition, 1864; 2nd edition, 1866), and Les Pharisiens (1877), written first in the form of articles for La Verité israélite. In December M. Emile Weyl, former lieutenant in the navy, who contributed to Le Temps, Les Debats, and Le Siécle; his articles on the navy are authoritative. In February M. Hendlé, son-in-law of the late Albert Cohn, prefect of the Lower-Seine; Baron Adolphe de Rothschild; Louis Benloew, professor and former rector of the Dijon Faculté des lettres, author of noteworthy works on comparative philology.

If we glance at the distinctions of all kinds that have been conferred in the course of the year, we see that our co-religionists stand well. Full enumeration would be wearisome. We will give only the most interesting examples. M. Lévy-Bruhl has been entrusted with the direction of philosophic studies in the Faculté des lettres of the University of Paris. M. Bergson was appointed professor of Greek and Latin philosophy at the Collège de France. M. Hartwig Derenbourg, professor of Arabic at the Ecole des sciences orientales, was elected member of the Académie des inscriptions et belles-lettres.

In the domain of Jewish literature we find only two publications to point out. One is the Bible translated from the original text by the members of the French rabbinate under the direction of the Grand-Rabbin Zadoc Kahn. The first volume alone has appeared, containing the Pentateuch and the Earlier Prophets; the second volume will be completed next year. At the same time a special edition for the young was published. The translation is very carefully done, and combines elegance with fidelity. The other work to be mentioned is by M. Moïse Schwab, the learned curator of the National Library, and is called: "List of Articles relating to Jewish History and Literature which have appeared in periodicals from 1783 to 1898" (pp. x, 408). It contains an index of authors, and M. Schwab is now preparing a subject index. The Sociéte des Etudes juires continues to publish its Review and to arrange lectures on subjects of interest to Judaism. The association L'Union scolaire has in its turn increased the number of lectures. The two weekly journals, l'Univers israélite and les Archives israélite, keep the public informed of all events in the Jewish world of the two hemispheres.

Events relating to matters of religion remain to be noticed. In December M. Bernard Lazare was appointed member of the Central Consistory for the district of Marseilles to replace the late M. Bédarrides.—The Sunday lectures begun last year were resumed this year. They commenced January 14 and were to close April 8, but they were so successful that they were continued to May 27. Moreover, an awakening of religious feeling is manifesting itself among French Jews. A new association has been formed, l'Union libérale israélite, which has the double object of developing love for Judaism and freeing it from superstitious and superannuated practices.

We greet with joy every effort to gain for the doctrine of Israel the respect and admiration that are its due.

THE ALLIANCE ISRAÉLITE UNIVERSELLE

BY JACQUES BIGART, SECRETARY

The time has not yet come to give a detailed history of the Alliance Israélite, of its origin, its development, the influence it exerts on the Jewish world, and its rôle as educator and emancipator. It is difficult to describe completely and impartially its activities up to the present time. Events are still too close to us, and of the men concerned in them many are still living. These conditions are unfavorable to the calm, sure appreciation demanded by history.

The sphere of action of the Alliance is in a manner twofold. On the one hand, it is, as a rule, intimately connected with the great events that have affected Jewish life for forty years, its history thus being in general the history of Judaism. On the other hand, it has consummated a complete work in education, which now absorbs the greater part of its resources and activities, and which will certainly remain an incontestable title to the gratitude of posterity. The results already obtained justify the attachment which it inspires in the Jewish world, and this article, limited though its compass be, allows sufficient room to show the part which it has taken and still takes in the moral and material progress of Jews in the quarters where its work is carried on.

I

Some time before 1860, thoughtful Jews had been preoccupied with the idea of creating a society to undertake the defense of the rights of the Jews wherever attacked or denied. As early as 1840, when Crémieux and Sir Moses Montefiore in the name of Occidental Judaism went to Egypt to obtain from Mehemet Ali the lives of the Jews of Damascus accused of having killed Father Thomas, the few Jewish journals of the time discussed the project of a creation of this kind. Later, in 1858, when the child Mortara was taken from its parents by the agents of the Pope, the lack of such an organization in Judaism was still more perceptible. The necessity for the Alliance was felt, but the men of action were wanting who should realize the desires of the Jewish community. In May, 1860, some Jews of Paris, resolutely disregarding the difficulties in the way of their enterprise, decided to create the Alliance Israélite Universelle. The province of the Association is clearly outlined in the first article of the statutes:

Article I. The Society of the Alliance Israélite Universelle has for its aim:

1st. To work everywhere for the emancipation and moral progress of the Jews.

2nd. To lend effectual support to those who suffer through being Jews.

3rd. To encourage every publication intended to bring about this result.

The enthusiasm in certain circles of Jews and the resistance in others, aroused by this preliminary step, can hardly be described. The Jewish journals of 1860 echoed these two tendencies, and brilliant, polemical articles, violent in tone, which make odd reading nowadays, called public attention to the new society. It could have desired nothing better. The noise at its birth spread knowledge of it abroad, and it soon gained adherents. Naturally, it obtained its first subscriptions at Paris and in France; gradually other countries followed, and in 1869, the number of members was already 11,500; in 1884, it was nearly 30,000. Since then it has slightly diminished.

The minimum annual dues are six francs.

The Alliance is governed by a Central Committee which meets at Paris, and consists of 23 members from Paris and 39 from outside of France, of whom 17 are from Germany, 1 from Austria, 2 from Hungary, 3 from Holland, 1 from London, 1 from Switzerland, 1 from Belgium, 6 from the United States, 4 from Italy, 1 from Denmark, 1 from Curaçoa, and 1 from Turkey. The members outside of France send written opinions on the questions discussed at the sessions of the Central Committee.

The Central Committee is elected by a majority vote of the members at large. Since 1893, however, there have been no public elections, and the places of members that have died or resigned have been filled by the method of co-optation—a method of voting preferred on account of the trying events through which Judaism in France and Germany is passing.

From the creation of the Alliance up to 1881 general public meetings had been held annually, sometimes at Paris, sometimes in other capitals of Europe. But unfortunately, anti-Semitism and national susceptibilities caused these annual celebrations to be relinquished, though they were interesting, and were followed with much pleasure by the members of the Society.

The Central Committee keeps in touch with the members through local or district committees. In France, Italy, and the United States, the local committees are in direct connection with the Central Committee. In the other countries, Germany, Hungary, and Holland, district committees are placed over the local committees, and their authority extends over areas sometimes extremely wide. But the function of each is, except in unusual cases, to carry out the resolutions of the Central Committee, to obtain new members, and to supply means for the Alliance. They exert but feeble influence on the society, which the Central Committee governs in complete independence.

An annual report or bulletin addressed to the members gives an account of the work of the society, and a monthly bulletin is published for the use of the committees and principal collaborators. Both bulletins appear in German and French, and a summary of the annual bulletin is published nearly every year in English. In 1885, on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the society, there appeared a sketch of its work, which has been translated into German, English, Arabic, Dutch, and Ladino.

II

The above is a brief description of the organization of the Alliance.

How has the program planned in the first article of the statutes been carried out? It would take too long to tell the struggles of the Alliance in promoting the emancipation of the Jews, and in obtaining for them participation in the rights of their fellow-citizens. By courting publicity, work of this character runs the risk of resulting in nothing and of offending prejudice. It was often in the cabinets of diplomacy that the ends of the society were reached, by measures issuing in practical achievement only after long years.

In 1860, the political situation in Europe apparently favored the aims of the Alliance. In all the old countries of Europe the spirit of liberalism and tolerance seemed to have reached all classes of society, and the upholders of equality appeared to be seconded in their efforts by statesmen and by the press. From the first the Alliance could reckon upon this fortunate disposition.

The affair of the child Mortara, stolen from its parents in 1858 by the agents of the Pope, had not yet been settled, and it was taken in hand by the Alliance. The Alliance received a sympathetic letter on the subject from Count Cavour, prime minister of Italy, encouraging it to persevere in its efforts, and assuring it of the co-operation of the Italian government. It did not succeed, however, in snatching their prey from the fanatical priests of Pius IX.

In 1860 various Swiss cantons still refused Jews the right of sojourn and rights in property. The Alliance undertook to have this shocking inequality done away with, and succeeded, thanks to the help of France, Italy, Belgium, and Holland, which, on the point of renewing their commercial treaty with Switzerland in 1867, demanded that Jewish subjects in Switzerland enjoy absolute equality with Christian subjects.

But chiefly in Eastern Europe and in Africa did the Alliance have to struggle for the emancipation and protection of the Jews. It directed its efforts to Roumania first and above all. This little country contains about 250,000 Jews, who are treated as aliens by the Roumanian laws, though they are subject to all the duties of citizens, even to military service. Within a few years regulations were passed which, in a measure, placed all the Jews outside of the law. They were forbidden to dwell in villages, to possess houses or land in village or country, to sell liquor, to exercise electoral rights, to hold public offices or salaried positions under the State, to peddle, and, more recently, to place their children in the public schools of all grades. These laws, chiefly the last, have been more murderous than the riots, the noyades, and the expulsions which preceded them.

Daily, for thirty years, the Alliance called attention to the bad faith and intolerance of the Roumanian government. It brought influence to bear on the European Powers by various proceedings, memorials, and interpellations in the French and English parliaments; it published hundreds of documents establishing the rights of the Jews and the perfidy of the Roumanian government. Under its auspices the first conference between delegates of European and American Jews was held at Brussels, October, 1872. It was decided to continue the struggle and aid Roumanian Jews in obtaining justice. Another conference was held at Paris, December 11, 1875, at which a resolution was passed that the Alliance, acting in the name of all Jews, should solemnly address the Powers in behalf of their Roumanian brethren. The memorial was presented at the conference at Constantinople that preceded the war between Russia and Turkey in 1877. The Congress of Berlin was, in turn, solicited, through three members of the Alliance delegated to the Congress, to take up the question. It was a unique moment in the history of the Society. The great of Europe, assembled at Berlin, gave a kind reception to the solicitations of the Alliance, and the Treaty of Berlin contains special articles which proclaim that in Roumania, Servia, and Bulgaria, "The difference of religious creeds and confessions shall not be alleged against any person as a ground for exclusion or incapacity in matters relating to the enjoyment of civil and political rights."

The Alliance might well have thought its object attained, but its hope was deceived; the Roumanian government duped the Powers, and refused to grant Jews political rights. To this very day the struggle continues, and the Alliance is constantly urging the Powers to bring pressure to bear upon Roumania, and insist that she execute the injunctions of the Treaty of Berlin.

In Servia the Alliance had to combat equally great obstacles, but the result was different, inasmuch as Servia conformed to the stipulations of the Treaty of Berlin.

In Bulgaria, likewise, Jews obtained all the rights of citizens, and they now exercise them with entire liberty.

III

It is difficult to tell in a few lines what the Alliance has done for the Jews of Russia. The ministers of Nicholas II would be greatly astonished, were it proved to them that between 1860 and 1870 Russia viewed the action of the Alliance with sympathy, and was apparently inclined to appeal to it for assistance in the relief of the Jews of the Empire. In 1862 a memorial in favor of some Jews of Saratif unjustly condemned on the charge of ritual murder was cordially received by Emperor Alexander II. In several other cases, the advances made by the Alliance were treated with the same sympathy. In 1869 the Alliance had to intervene in Poland in order to save thousands of Jewish families from famine. It called a conference for the purpose at Berlin, at which steps were taken for the safety of the unfortunate people, and an appeal was made to the generosity of all Jews. Eight hundred emigrants were helped to New York, where the Board of Delegates received them, and aided them to establish themselves; besides, three hundred orphans were taken care of by the Alliance, and relief committees were instituted at Berlin, Posen, and Königsberg.

The great persecutions of 1881-82 are well known. The Alliance took the initiative in the subscriptions started at the time, assuming as well the task of systematizing the emigration to the United States. The American Jews accepted the duty imposed on them with admirable devotion, a devotion that has not flagged; for they are still active in behalf of that immense Jewish population which came to the United States in search of a new home, of security, and means of subsistence.

The interior of Russia is the chief sphere of the work of the Alliance. Here it continues to aid victims of expulsion and incendiarism, to assist agricultural colonies wasted by famine, and to subsidize schools and support students. Sums employed in this beneficent way are counted by the millions. At the very moment these lines are being written, the Alliance is opening a new subscription for the famine-stricken in southwest Russia. The severity of the Russian government limits the action of the Alliance to purely charitable enterprises. In this line there is still so much to be done that the Alliance will have to devote its efforts and resources to it for many years.

IV

In Christian countries, such as those of which we have hitherto spoken, the inferior position of the Jew is the result of legislation designedly unjust; in Moslem countries it is not due to law, but to custom, to the economic situation, and to the cupidity of officials. In Turkey, Egypt, and Tunis Jews are happy, and, if acts of violence against them do sometimes occur, they can be attributed only to special circumstances, to excitement, or to the barbarism of the inhabitants. In Turkey and Tunis the Alliance has frequently had to intervene to aid Jews in obtaining justice. Many a time has it come to the rescue of Jewish communities tried by accidental disasters—famine in Asiatic Turkey in 1880, fire at Constantinople in 1874 and in 1883, earthquake on Chios in 1881, war in 1878-79, etc.

In Morocco and Persia the situation has remained precarious. The bulletins of the Alliance are filled with tales of violence towards the Jews in Morocco—murders, robberies, innumerable exactions—and one may say that the Alliance has been intervening there daily for forty years. It is due to the measures taken and the agitation carried on by the Alliance that a Congress of the Powers assembled at Madrid in 1880 endorsed the protection accorded the Jews by the governments of Europe and America. Two members of the committee of the Alliance had repaired to Madrid to plead the cause of humanity before the diplomats in session.

In Persia the Mussulman population belongs to the particularly fanatical sect of Shiites. The Alliance for a long time sought to establish the safety of the Jews in that country. As the central government is feeble and its authority not far-reaching, it was thought the best method to found schools. The first was opened at Teheran in 1898, and more recently another at Hamadan. The directors of the schools are held by the Persian authorities to be veritable representatives of Occidental Judaism, and their presence constitutes a weighty moral guarantee against the assaults of the fanatical population.

V

Some thirty years ago the accusation of ritual murder was the privilege of followers of the Greek Church, the Slavs, the Greeks, and the Bulgarians. From Christian it passed to Moslem countries, and within the last fifteen years it has re-appeared in Occidental Europe. This is not the place to discuss the thousand incidents and legal processes that this stupid accusation has provoked since the creation of the Alliance. I simply wish to say that no prejudice, no superstition has been battled with so continuously and with so much perseverance as this silly charge. It can be safely alleged that the accusation has been made in no country without the direct or indirect intervention of the Alliance, either to save the accused, indemnify the Jewish victims, or enlighten judges and populace on the inanity of the prejudice. It has called forth expressions of opinion from scholars, ecclesiastics and others, and has brought about the publication of numerous books and monographs on the subject. At this very hour it is helping the Jews of Austria and Germany in their struggle against this shameful remnant of a past age.

Besides modifying public opinion, in a measure permanently, and protecting Jewish interests, the Alliance, by virtue of its title and patent to occupy itself with the affairs of the Jewish community at large, has always had the obligation of intervening when a catastrophe, an accidental persecution, has threatened, or actually fallen upon, the Jews. It has very often, for instance, opened subscriptions for Jewish victims of famine, inundation, and incendiarism, and hardly a year has passed that it has not had to appeal to the generosity of Jews in consequence of calamities of this kind. This very year, in 1900, it undertook to help the starving Jews of Bessarabia (Russia), Roumania, and Galicia. The Jewish public has always received its appeals with favor, and large sums have been placed at its disposal and employed for the relief of unfortunate Jews.

VI

The Alliance which, according to the idea of the founders, ought to have existed chiefly for the defense and emancipation of Jews suffering from persecution or as victims of social and legal inequality, has been led by force of circumstances to enter educational work, which absorbs the larger part of its regular income, and takes foremost place in its functions. The success obtained shows that to take this road was a happy inspiration.

From the creation of the Alliance the conviction grew that the relief of African and Oriental Jews could be accomplished only through instruction and manual labor. In 1860 these Jews had intellectually and morally fallen below the Jews of Russia and Roumania; no traces were left of those scholars who in past centuries had rendered African and Oriental Judaism illustrious. The depressing Ghetto life which they led had stunted their very physique. As soon as the Alliance had funds at its disposal, it resolved to employ them for establishing schools. In 1862 the first was established at Tetuan in Morocco; others followed, in 1864 at Tangiers, in 1865 at Bagdad. Thereafter the erection of new schools kept pace with the increase of funds, and from 1875 on, progress has been rapid. In 1880, the number of schools was 34, in 1890, 54, in 1900 it is 95, of which 59 are boys' schools and 36 girls'. The number of pupils reaches 24,000.

The educational work of the Alliance affects a Jewish population of nearly 500,000. It extends over Morocco, Tunis, Egypt, Tripoli, Africa, Bulgaria, European Turkey and Asiatic Turkey as far as Bagdad, penetrates into Persia, and enters Roumania and Algeria.

Since the Russian government affects to regard the Alliance as a political society, forbidding all its publications in Russian territory, the Alliance can there exert but indirect influence. Its very correspondence is sometimes seized and suppressed. In Roumania, Jews had up to recent years been able to attend the public schools. Since the bad faith of Roumania has driven Jewish children from public institutions, the Alliance and chiefly the Jewish Colonization Association have been aiding Roumanian communities to organize Jewish schools. In Galicia Baron de Hirsch established an educational institution which renders the intervention of the Alliance needless. In Algeria Jews send their children to the public schools, but the instruction, too dry and technical, does not satisfy their needs, and moral education, of which there is great necessity among Algerian Jews, is wholly lacking. To supply this want the Alliance has decided to give them the benefit of its experience and its moral guidance. It began the work in the city of Algiers. It has there recently organized moral and religious instruction, improved the manual instruction of boys, and started rooms for girls to teach them sewing and for other purposes. It is estimated that to render the work useful and lasting it will be necessary to spend nearly 30,000 francs a year. Little by little other Jewish centres in Algeria will be enriched with similar institutions.

In the 95 schools of the Alliance the curriculum necessarily differs according to the country, and the needs and the customs of each region. The aim is not to turn out little scholars, but to let a ray of civilization penetrate souls closed to Occidental ideas, arouse notions of personal dignity, and give general knowledge of the progress of humanity. Naturally, in all primary schools, the ordinary elementary instruction is given—arithmetic, a little geography, some science and drawing, and the history of the country. Particular importance is attached to the study of European languages according to the needs of each group of pupils.

At Bagdad, in Egypt, and in Morocco, stress is laid on the study of English; in Turkey, German is beginning to take an important place, and everywhere special attention is paid to Hebrew and religious instruction. In the teaching of history, the highest importance is attached to Jewish history. The committee of the Alliance is convinced that no study is at once more interesting or more elevating morally. This history, stirring, sad, and at the same time fortifying, shows what qualities and virtues have enabled the Jewish race to resist so many destructive agencies, and inspires in children invincible attachment to a people at once unfortunate and courageous.

The schools of the Alliance are not absolutely free. Poor children alone are taken without pay; the well-to-do and the rich pay in proportion to their means. Not only is instruction free for the poor, but once or twice a year they receive books and clothes, and every day at noon a warm dinner—a nourishing plate of soup, or vegetables and bread. This is a particularly acceptable benefaction. Thousands of children, who formerly at noon ate a few olives or an onion, now satisfy their hunger. The health and appearance of the children show better than anything that can be said the happy results of the well-conceived charity due to the generosity of Baroness de Hirsch.

The Alliance schools are open to children of all sects. In 1899, they were attended by nearly three hundred pupils belonging to religions other than the Jewish—Catholic, Protestant, Greek, Armenian, and Mussulman. Among the teachers, too, especially the instructors in the language of the country, there are non-Jews.

The influence of the school would not be effectual if it did not keep track of the child after it left the institution. Besides, a number of children never attend school, and arrived at manhood, they pay dear for their ignorance. To remedy this fault, evening classes for adults, led by the teachers of the school, have been formed in the larger number of great Oriental and African centres, and they have been highly successful. They are attended by many workmen, petty tradesmen, and day-laborers, who there obtain wholesome instruction, elementary though it be.

At the beginning of its educational work the Alliance recruited its teachers from any source. Soon it became apparent that to ensure the existence of a corps of teachers devoted to their difficult mission and prepared for it, it would be necessary to train the instructors specially, keeping the end to be accomplished in view. Therefore, as early as 1868, the Alliance started at Paris a preparatory school for boys and one for girls. The students are selected from among the best pupils of the Oriental and African schools, and go to Paris to complete their education. The length of their stay in Paris is about four years. The boys' school occupies a very fine piece of property acquired by the Alliance in 1899, adjacent to the Bois de Boulogne, in the healthiest and most agreeable part of Paris. At first there were only 20 to 30 pupils, but as the number of primary pupils has increased, the number of advanced pupils has grown in proportion, and on December 31, 1899, there were 90. Among them are 15 from Roumania, who will return to their native country in order to direct the Jewish schools founded there.

The Alliance has also placed in the school ten young men who acquired the rudiments of agriculture at the farm school at Jaffa, and who attend the higher agricultural schools at Paris, in order to become overseers, administrators, or teachers in the farm schools of the Alliance or in the colonies of the Jewish Colonization Association.

The girls, now numbering 42, are placed in two institutions specially intended for them; but their studies are nearly the same as those of the boys.

Nearly 200 teachers in the Alliance schools come from the preparatory school at Paris.

The teachers needed in the schools of the Jewish colonies in the Argentine Republic also are provided by the Alliance. There are already ten such teachers holding positions there. They were specially prepared for the work by the study of Spanish, the language of the Republic.

The transformation quietly effected by the schools in the backward communities that constitute the sphere of their activity, has been pronounced worthy of admiration by all travelers and inspectors. The sentiment of human dignity has been inspired in thousands of persons who would otherwise not have dared lift their heads, but would have bowed their necks to injury and shameful treatment. A new generation is arising conscious of its rights and dignities, knowing how to struggle and eager to struggle for its proper position in society. In a great number of Oriental and African schools, there have been formed "Associations of the Former Pupils of the Alliance." They are animated by an excellent spirit, and form, as it were, a second Alliance, which will gradually complete the work begun by the older society.

VIII

Since in poor countries the school can provide its pupils with a livelihood only by preparing them for some trade, the Alliance has from the beginning had the idea of directing their activities to handicrafts and agriculture. With this object in view, it has gradually, in 30 places in the Orient and in Africa, apprenticed 700 boys. The trades chosen for them are principally those not yet practiced by the Jews, and demanding a certain amount of physical strength—the trades that alone can make robust workmen, fit to earn their living. This work cannot develop with the same rapidity as the schools, for various reasons: poverty of the country and consequently limited needs of the inhabitants; absence of industries; overcrowding of certain trades; and hostility of non-Jewish patrons, who, in order not to create competition, are unwilling to accept Jewish apprentices.

The apprentices are placed with free patrons, and receive small wages, varying from 4 to 8 francs a month, of which a part is retained to buy implements when their apprenticeship is completed.

At Jerusalem the work is differently organized. There the Alliance has started workshops carried on and directed by itself: a smithy, a foundry, and a copper-smithy, and shops for cabinet-making, stone-working, and carving. There are 120 apprentices, of whom 50 are residents supported at the expense of the institution.

Side by side with the girls' schools, the Alliance has established work-rooms for poor young girls who wish to learn a trade. Such work-rooms exist in 18 cities. The girls are taught chiefly sewing—white sewing, embroidery, dressmaking—and two rooms are devoted to carpet-weaving. This work is of great material and moral benefit. It furnishes a livelihood to poor girls, and urges to useful occupations a people little disposed to manual trades.

IX

In agricultural work the Alliance took the initiative. As early as 1870 it opened an agricultural school, with resident pupils only, at Jaffa, the gate to Palestine, in the midst of the most fanatical and most backward people. At that time the movement that is now impelling Jews to agricultural work was not yet born, and it is to the credit of certain far-seeing intellectual men that they anticipated this impulse and provided for it. After many trials the school succeeded beyond all hope. It is called Mikweh Israel ("Hope of Israel"), and it has justified the name. It led the steps of the first Russian and Roumanian colonists who established themselves in Palestine; it furnished them guides and examples, and still aids them with the valuable counsel of its teachers in agriculture. At the present time there are 220 resident pupils, originally from Turkey, Bulgaria, Roumania, Russia, and Egypt. The agriculturists it has turned out are to-day the best colonists in Palestine, and, thanks to the generous support of the Jewish Colonization Association, all its pupils find work. The pupils remain at the school for five years. Three or four of the best are every year sent to Europe to complete their studies in agricultural institutions. The best proof of the success of the school is the eagerness of the most orthodox families in Palestine and elsewhere to place their children in it.

At the time when the most perspicacious saw in agriculture one of the best solutions of the problem of pauperism among the Jews, and even of anti-Semitism, the Alliance thought it its duty without loss of time to urge as many children as possible to enter upon an agricultural career. To that end it established in Tunis a new agricultural school, meant chiefly for the Jewish children of Morocco, Algeria, Tunis, Egypt, and Tripoli. In 1895 it acquired, at Djédéida near Tunis a large piece of property of nearly 4000 hectares, the value of which, together with the value of the buildings needed, represents a great sum of money. The number of children, at first fixed at 25, is now 110, and will be raised to 250. On leaving the school, children from Algeria, Tunis, and Egypt will easily find employment in their respective countries. The first pupils, who left in 1899, have already been engaged both by Jews that own farming estates and by Christians. Moreover, the Alliance will itself establish, on the property of the school, which is designedly very large, those of its pupils who give the best assurance of success, and it will be seconded in this project by the Jewish Colonization Association.

Finally, a third agricultural school, to be called D'Or Jehuda, will be opened in October, 1900, near Smyrna, on land acquired by the Jewish Colonization Association.

The Alliance, then, it is seen, is preparing for large generations of agriculturists, and provides an effectual stimulus to the movement which is impelling Jews to devote themselves to agriculture.

X

To complete, to crown, as it were, the educational work for the regeneration of African and Oriental Judaism, the Alliance in 1897 established at Constantinople a Rabbinical School, from which the communities of the countries about will draw educated and enlightened rabbis. Its graduates will be better able to work for the relief of the Jews, to assure them protection and defense, than the present rabbis, who are sometimes ignorant and narrow-minded. The school, established on the model of similar rabbinical colleges in the Occident, works under excellent conditions. It is directed by a rabbi who is known to possess wide religious and general knowledge. Three professors, one of whom was educated at the Rabbinical Seminary at Paris, aid him in instructing and directing. The Alliance is convinced that this work will render the greatest service to the Jewish population of Africa and the Orient.

XI

There remains to be said something about the last part of the program of the Society: "to encourage every publication which makes for the emancipation and relief of the Jews." The Alliance grants subventions to every publication, every truly scientific and original work, of interest to Jews and Judaism. For thirty years hardly one such important work has appeared that has not obtained the co-operation of the Alliance when solicited by author or editor; and the annual expenditure for these purposes is as high as 4000 or 5000 francs. The subventions are most frequently turned to the acquisition of copies of the works, to be distributed among Jewish scientific institutions, seminaries, higher schools, etc., and among Jewish scholars lacking the means to buy them.

The Alliance possesses an important Jewish library, in which are collected all documents and works concerning Jewish history and science—statistics, history, anthropology, demography, legislation, literature, exegesis, theology, polemics, etc.; and a collection of the principal Jewish journals and periodicals of the world.

To this library every year are added all works appearing upon Judaism and Jewish science. It now contains nearly 22,000 volumes, and is certainly the most important and most complete Jewish library in existence. The books are at the service of all students, and are sent to them, whether in France or in foreign countries, if they need them for their studies, and do not possess the means to procure them.

XII

I have given a rapid sketch of the work of the Alliance, which shows how vast and diverse are the domains over which its activity extends. Some figures from the budget of 1899 will further enable one to judge of this.

The total expenditures amount to 1,250,000 francs, of which the principal items are:

For relief and various subventions	100,000	frs.
Preparatory schools for boys and girls	140,000	"
Secondary and high schools	15,000	"
Primary schools	500,000	"
Instruction of apprentices (boys)	128,000	"
Instruction of apprentices (girls)	21,000	"
Agricultural schools	220,000	"

The receipts were less than the disbursements by nearly 200,000 francs. They came from the following sources:

Member's dues and gifts	170,000 frs.
Interest on sinking fund and on the endowments of Baron de Hirsch	472,000 "
Subventions of the Jewish Colonization Association	250,000 "
Various subventions	60,000 "
Balance on hand	100,000 "

The deficit of nearly 200,000 francs will have to be made up by drawing upon the capital. During the next few years it will be covered by the legacies of Baroness de Hirsch.

The present outlook is that the development of the schools and of trade instruction, and the help given the Jewish communities of Russia, Roumania, and Persia, will entail great expenditures, and that the Alliance will need new funds to cope with its manifold tasks. It can safely depend upon the generosity of its friends and all Jews to help on its mission, at once difficult, complex and great.

Co-operates in other cities with existing societies when circumstances warrant.

Synopsis of the Work

The work of the Baron de Hirsch Fund of America may be treated of under the following headings:

I. Reception of immigrants.
II. English education.
III. Mechanical education.
IV. Productive work of the Baron de Hirsch Fund in its agricultural and industrial department, with its leading educational feature, the Woodbine Agricultural and Industrial School.

In the last two departments, the Jewish Colonization Association has latterly enabled the Baron de Hirsch Fund to carry out its program effectively, as appears from the last report of the Colonization Association.

I. Reception of Immigrants.—Upon the arrival of immigrants at United States ports an agent sees to it that they reach their destinations, provided they have determined to leave the city; if not, as many as possible are sent out of town to places where employment has previously been found for them. The policy is to scatter them throughout the country, so that they will not congest in large cities. Whenever necessary, their expenses to their new homes are paid, and they are supported en route. Those who remain in New York, and need advice and assistance, are directed to the Labor Bureau of the United Hebrew Charities, supported in part by the Fund, and employment is found for them when possible. If absolutely necessary, support is given to immigrants for a short time, until they are able to earn a living. Occasionally they are established in trades, and in extreme cases temporary relief is afforded to families. Not more than five per cent. of the number thus assisted has made application for additional help.

II. English Education.—Immediately upon arrival the immigrant children are taught English in large, well-ventilated classrooms, by college graduates, who prepare them to enter the public schools. As they are taught according to the method employed in the public schools, and are noted for their rapid advance and exact attainments, they are welcomed with eagerness by the principals. There are now about 400 children in the day classes.

There are also evening classes, composed of 400 workingmen and women, most of whom come to their classes direct from the workshop.

In some cases of students of Russian or Roumanian birth who have entered colleges, and have made creditable progress, loans are advanced to enable them to complete their studies and be graduated.

III. MECHANICAL EDUCATION.—In 1890 the Baron de Hirsch Trade School was established in a building rented for the purpose at 225-227 East Ninth Street, in New York, wherein two classes have been graduated each year since.

On January 1, 1899, through the munificence of the late Baroness de Hirsch-Gereuth, a new building, constructed upon the most modern principles, was opened. Two classes, the second on July 11, 1900, each of fifty-five young men, have been graduated. (See BARON DE HIRSCH TRADE SCHOOL under NEW YORK in the DIRECTORY OF LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS.)

The trades are carpentry, plumbing, house, sign and fresco painting, and machine work; English is taught to those who are deficient; also drawing and the technical branch of each trade. There are two school terms a year, of five and a half months each. No pretense is made of turning out finished mechanics; sufficient is taught, however, to enable the graduates to become "helpers" in their respective vocations, and in most cases good positions are obtained immediately upon leaving the school. The graduates earn from $7 to $15 a week, and in proportion as their experience enables them to do better work, their compensation is increased, some of them receiving now $22.50 a week. Each graduate is given the tools of his trade. Tuition is free.

Though the school is open to any Jewish boy, preference is given to natives of Russia or Roumania.

The point of view is that, essential though it be that a boy learn a trade, it is important that his earning powers be developed as quickly as possible. Anything that helps to train his mind and hand, and promotes rapid progress, is desirable. On these thoroughly practical lines the school is conducted. On the other hand, the idea is constantly kept before the pupils, that when they become skilled mechanics they are entitled to the wages of skilled mechanics. Thus the Trade School, by exciting the ambition to excel in the minds of the pupils, tends to reduce the danger of close competition in other directions.

The aim of the school, then, is to reach the three following results:

1. To teach a boy as quickly as possible the fundamental principles of some trade, together with as much arithmetic and mechanical drawing as is indispensable in a given line of work.

2. To teach him to do well what is required of the class of help whose place he is fitted by age and attainments to fill.

3. To teach him unquestioning obedience.

To accomplish these results he is placed under the care of a skilled mechanic, who has no more pupils than he can faithfully teach, for five months and a half, eight hours a day, five days in the week, holidays excepted. A longer period would be more desirable, but it would entail a sacrifice of time, which would be difficult for pupils to bear, as no support whatever is allowed them by the Fund.

IV. Productive Work of the Baron de Hirsch Fund.—The Agricultural and Industrial Department of the Baron de Hirsch Fund was organized as an agency to promote the economical interests of Russo-Jewish immigrants:

1. To advise them properly in the acquisition of homesteads in rural districts all over the country.

2. To grant them loans, towards the purchase of farms, live-stock and implements, in proportion to their own funds and their ability as farmers.

3. To transfer industries and those employed in them from crowded cities to agricultural districts, with a view to benefiting the wage-earners in health and comfort and at the same time creating consumers of farm products at the place of their production.

The success of the Baron de Hirsch Fund in this department has been marked. It enjoys the full confidence of immigrants intending to purchase farms as well as of owners of farm lands willing to sell. By both it is looked upon as a trustworthy bureau of agricultural and industrial information.

In the purchase of farms for an immigrant, various points are taken into consideration: his means, his ability as a farmer, the location of the homestead, the facilities it offers for cattle-breeding, its distance from a market or a creamery, etc. Each one of these is a factor determining the purchase price.

At present many favorable opportunities present themselves. Established dairy farms are offered for sale in New England at a price less than the cost of the buildings upon them. Their abandonment is due to the death or old age of their owners, whose children, attracted to the cities and to professional occupations, are willing to sell their ancestral homesteads at a great sacrifice.

Jewish immigrants coming from the villages of the Pale of Settlement in Russia are ready buyers of dairy farms, because they were accustomed to dairy pursuits in their old home. Many of them kept a smaller or larger number of dairy cattle, and raised feed for them, on leased land. On the other hand, few are skilled gardeners, and therefore they are not successful at other kinds of farming in this country.

The activity of the Baron de Hirsch Fund in its capacity as an agricultural agent, offering liberal loans, furnishing accurate information, and advising with a view to conditions and circumstances, has had the following result:

The settlement of 600 Jewish farmers on as many homesteads in New England.

The settlement of 400 families in New Jersey.

In New England the farming interests of Jewish immigrants are indicated by the following figures:

1. Investment of the immigrants, $1,100,000.

2. Loans upon mortgages other than those held by the Baron de Hirsch Fund, $1,250,000.

The loans and advances made by the Baron de Hirsch Fund have substantially helped to make these investments safe and productive.

The Jewish capital invested in farming enterprises in New Jersey and other parts of the country is represented by even larger figures. Moreover, it is constantly increasing, in proportion to the spread of industrial activity in agricultural districts. As the limited means of the immigrants forbid the purchase of homesteads near large towns, which offer ready markets for farm products, the Baron de Hirsch Fund aims to remove to the more distant places in which they must settle, the industries, such as the tailoring trades, in which many of the immigrants are employed. This policy at the same time relieves the so-called Ghettos from the congestion at present endangering the social and sanitary condition of our large cities.

New York alone contains 65,000 operatives who are engaged in tailoring, in the "sweat-shops," to support their families, that is, 200,000 persons, constituting a majority of the Jewish population. In other words, the tailoring trade keeps the East Side solidly Jewish, and attracts constantly newcomers from abroad and from the interior. The Baron de Hirsch Fund holds out every encouragement to these wage-earners to remove to country districts: factories with modern improvements; comfortable homes, rented and sold on liberal terms; educational facilities, especially in the direction of trades and agriculture; and the opportunity to live in a Jewish community.

The Woodbine Agricultural and Industrial School, the leading educational feature of this department of the Baron de Hirsch Fund work, was opened in October, 1894, with 15 pupils. Its aim is to train up practical, intelligent farmers, able to act as assistants to other farmers or prepared to work farms of their own. Applicants for admission must be at least 14 years of age, and be prepared to pass an examination equivalent to that of the third grade in the public schools of Cape May County. Tuition is free to all regular students, and board and lodging may be had at the dormitory at actual cost, but students whose parents are unable to support them while at school are boarded and lodged free of charge. These students are, however, expected to offset such expenses by labor on the School Farm. There are now 69 pupils at the school, taught by 7 instructors, one of them a graduate of the school. The course extends over three years, and the studies are divided into theoretical and practical. The studies pursued by the boys are as follows: (1) English, (2) arithmetic, (3) drawing, (4) history, (5) geography, (6) chemistry, (7) physics, (8) bookkeeping and correspondence, (9) botany, (10) experimental chemistry, (11) mathematics, (12) geometrical drawing, (13) soils and crops, (14) manures and fertilizers, (15) land measuring, (16) zoölogy, (17) entomology, (18) collecting of plants, (19) feeds, (20) comparative anatomy and physiology, (21) domestic animals (selection, care, etc.), (22) horticulture, (23) floriculture, (24) landscape gardening, (25) market gardening, (26), meteorology, (27) relation of forestry to agriculture, (28) dairying, (29) farm implements and machinery.

The studies for girls substitute chemistry of foods, hygiene and nursing, household economics, household sanitation, foods and preserves, foods in detail, for Nos. 10, 12, 13, 14, 15, 19, 25 and 29.

The practical work of the boys consists of care of stables, poultry yards, domestic animals, milking, and shop and field work; planting, care of crops, harvesting, work in greenhouses, cold frames, hot beds, in orchards and the blacksmith shop; care of small fruit, floriculture, and work on the nursery grounds and in the wheelwright shop.

The girls throughout the course have practical work in sewing, cooking, care of the poultry, dairy, etc., and are employed in doing the household work of the dormitories and in practical housekeeping.

The School Farms contain 240 acres, of which 30 acres are in orchards, 20 acres in berries, 6 acres in grapes, and the remainder is suitable for corn, truck and field crops in general; besides, some land is in bushes and some in woods.

The buildings are: two school-houses, a new school building having just been erected; a teacher's cottage; four poultry houses; barns; sheds; corn cribs; greenhouses; cold frames; a boiler house; a windmill; a storage room, and electric power house for lighting and heating.

The school is provided with a chemical laboratory, physical apparatus, Babcock's test and a library of reference books, auditorium, gymnasium and baths.

The dormitories can accommodate 200 pupils.

Religious services are held daily; the Sabbath is devoted to divine worship, religious instruction, and rest.

Woodbine, founded in 1891, now contains 1500 inhabitants, employed in four factories or on their farms. There are two public schools, a kindergarten, five stores, a bakery, two educational clubs, three fraternal societies, a public bath-house, an evening school, a religious school, a synagogue, a hall, and a Baptist church.

The Jewish Colonization Association

Since 1896 the Baron de Hirsch Fund has had the support of the Jewish Colonization Association, and has co-operated with it in the United States. As a result, the capacity of the Trade School has been doubled; the agricultural work, especially at the Woodbine School, has been broadened in scope and effectiveness; the American Committee has been furnished with additional means to transplant the industrial population from the great centres to the rural districts; isolated farmers in New England have been helped with loans to free their land from mortgages, so that at present more than "600 Jewish farmers are living in New England on their own land, which they themselves cultivate with the help of their families. . . . The farms are fully developed, and the farmers have commenced conscientiously to pay their debts."

The following is a summary of the report of the Jewish Colonization Association for 1899 concerning the United States:

"The Association has carried on in the United States the work of which the last Annual Report indicated the principal lines, and which consists in removing the Jews from the centres where they are congested and in encouraging them to agricultural and industrial labor in rural districts. Thus, the Association has continued to support the Jewish Colonies in South Jersey and the individual farmers who are established in New England. It has favored the establishment of factories in the neighborhood of Jewish farms in order to create a permanent market for them; it has finally supported the school at Woodbine, which affords to children an agricultural and industrial education.

"The assistance given to the three colonies, Alliance, Carmel and Rosenhayn, in South Jersey, has made them prosperous. The climatic conditions are excellent, and this region could receive a large number of Jewish families who are at present vegetating in large cities. The factories are being regularly developed.

"Thousands of Jewish families who come from Russia, Roumania and Galicia are accustomed to working the soil; it is on this account that the Association has assisted individual farmers, the total number of families helped in 1898 being eighty-six, with farms of the aggregate value of $179,200.

"A grant was voted for the establishment of a hundred families at Colchester (Connecticut). The Baron de Hirsch Fund is engaged in extending the work of removing families to rural districts near the factories at which they are employed. The tailoring trade appears to have the best prospects of success. It is successfully practiced in the South Jersey Colonies. In New York alone it provides a living for 68,000 families, among whom there is a majority of Jews from Russia, Roumania and Galicia. The annual yield of this industry amounts to $320,000,000, and the wages are estimated at $23,000,000 a year."

CENTRAL CONFERENCE OF AMERICAN RABBIS

Founded, Detroit, Mich., July, 1889.

President, Joseph Silverman, New York; Vice-Presidents, Moses Mielziner, Cincinnati, O., and Max Landsberg, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Charles S. Levi, Peoria, Ill.; Corresponding Secretary, Rudolf Grossman, 1347 Lexington Av., New York; Recording Secretary, G. Deutsch, Hyde Park, Cincinnati, O.

Trustees: E. G. Hirsch, D. Philipson, Jos. Stolz, T. Shanfarber, K. Kohler.

Trustees of Superannuated Ministers' Fund: J. Silverman, I. Aaron, L. Mayer.

Editors of Year Book: R. Grossman, G. Deutsch, H. Veld.

Members: regular, 144; honorary, 4.

Annual income, $695.

Board meeting first Monday of the month; organization meets annually in July.

Objects: To establish and maintain good fellowship among the Rabbis; to teach one another and to learn of each other; to encourage research and literary work, especially in history and literature of Judaism; to discuss the religious and ecclesiastical problems of the day, and furnish a formulated opinion on problems under consideration.

Publications of the Conference:

1. Ten volumes of the Year Book of the Conference, containing all proceedings of the body, with all the papers read, addresses, lectures and sermons delivered in the Conference.

2. Judaism at the World's Parliament of Religions (in Chicago, 1893).

3. The Union Prayer Book, two volumes; and Union Hymnal, one volume.

4. One volume of Sermons.
5. Various pamphlets.

The meeting for 1900 was held at Buffalo, N. Y., July 3-7. The address of welcome was delivered by Rabbi Israel Aaron, of Buffalo, and replied to by Rabbi T. Shanfarber, of Mobile. Rabbi Jos. Silverman, of New York, the Acting President, presented his message.

The morning of the second day was devoted to a memorial service in honor of the Rev. Dr. Isaac Mayer Wise (died March 26, 1900). Addresses were delivered by Rabbis M. Landsberg, Rochester; S. Sale, St. Louis; M. Schlesinger, Albany; L. Mayer, Pittsburg; and I. S. Moses, Chicago. The musical portion of the service was conducted by Rev. A. Kaiser, Baltimore.

Papers were read by Rabbi H. G. Enelow, Paducah, Ky., on "The Synod in the Past and its Feasibility in the Future"; and by Rabbi Rudolf Grossman, New York, on "The Rabbi as a Scholar." Rabbi Charles Levi, of Peoria, delivered a lecture Friday evening, and on Saturday the sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch.

Memorial resolutions were adopted on the death of Ezriel Hildesheimer, David Kaufman, Elijah Benamozheg, and Emilio Castelar, and fraternal greetings were sent to the Society of German Rabbis.

The Conference appointed committees on Rabbinical Diplomas; Summer School; and a Quarterly Review.

The Conference has assets amounting to $5595.74, of which $3100.46 is a fund for superannuated ministers. The report of the Committee on Publication showed that thousands of copies of the evening service of the Union Prayer Book had been distributed among soldiers in Cuba and in the various camps during the Spanish-American War. 12 copies of the week-day service were sent to Camp Sheridan and 75 volumes to Jewish soldiers at Camp Lexington. 139 Congregations now use the prayer-book, and 43,493 copies have been sold.

COUNCIL OF JEWISH WOMEN

Headquarters, Chicago, Ill.

Founded September, 1897.

President, Hannah G. Solomon (Mrs. Henry), Chicago; Vice-Presidents, Sophie Beer (Mrs. Julius), New York, and Babette Mandel (Mrs. Emanuel), Chicago; Treasurer, Bertha A. Selz (Mrs. J. H.), Chicago; Recording Secretary, Gertrude Berg, Philadelphia; Corresponding Secretary, Sadie American, 3130 Vernon Av., Chicago; Auditor, Minnie Loeb (Mrs. Leo), Chicago.

Executive Board: (for six years) Mary Cohen, Philadelphia; Jeannette M. Goldberg, Jefferson, Tex.; Laura Mordecai, Philadelphia; Mrs. J. B. Judah, Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Jos. Ransohoff, Cincinnati, O.; (for three years) Mrs. Max Landsberg, Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. Hugo Rosenberg, New York; Mrs. S. Pisko, Denver, Colo.; Mrs. A. Wald, Louisiana, Mo.; Mrs. M. Goldenberg, Baltimore, Md.

The purposes of the organization are: "To further united efforts in behalf of Judaism by supplying means of study; by an organic union to bring about closer relations among Jewish women; to furnish a medium for interchange of thought and a means of communication and of prosecuting work of common interest; to further united efforts in the work of social betterment through religion, philanthropy and education."

This work is done under the direction of five national committees: on Religion; on Philanthropy; on Religious School Work; on Junior Sections; on Reciprocity. Programs are published triennially, containing the reports of these committees, outlining work for the Sections, giving topics for papers and study and bibliographical lists.

Members, 4785, distributed among 47 Sections in the United States and Canada.

Income of last fiscal year, about $1500.

The organization meets triennially; last meeting in Cleveland, O., March 4-10, 1900.

At the meeting in Cleveland, the following reports were presented: The Annual Report of the President, Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon; the Report of the Corresponding Secretary, Miss Sadie American; the Report of the Committee on Religion, Mrs. Max Landsberg, Chairman; the Report of the Committee on Philanthropy, Mrs. Hugo Rosenberg, Chairman; five-minute reports by Vice-Presidents of the States; three-minute reports by the Sections; and the Report of Miss American as delegate to the International Council of Women, held in London, in June, 1899.

The following papers were read: "Uses of Parliamentary Law," by Mrs. Seraphine Pisko, of Denver; "A Study in Religion," by Miss Jeannette M. Goldberg, of Jefferson, Tex.; "Plain Tales from a Small Town," by Mrs. Sadie Wald, of Louisiana, Mo.; "Relation of Faith to Conduct," by Miss Lily Montagu, of London, Eng.; "Woman's Place in Communal Affairs," by Miss Gertrude Berg, of Philadelphia; "Assimilation," by Mrs. Alex. Bernstein, of Portland, Ore.; "Some Philanthropic Dont's," by Mrs. Bertha S. Muller, of Denver; "The Jewish Immigration Problem," by Mrs. A. Leo Weil, of Pittsburg; "Duties of Parents towards Sabbath Schools," by Mrs. Eli Strouse, of Baltimore; "Summer Work for Children," by Mrs. M. B. Schwab, of Cleveland. In addition to the papers, addresses were delivered by Rev. Drs. M. Gries and M. Machol, of Cleveland, O., and President Thwing, of the Western Reserve University.

As typical philanthropies conducted by Sections, the following were described: Ice and Milk Fund in Baltimore; Recreation Rooms for Young Girls in New York; Mission School in Pittsburg; Hospital for Consumptives in Denver.

The discussions of the Round Table were participated in by Miss Hetty Abraham, Washington; Mrs. H. L. Frank, Chicago; Mrs. Julius Beer, New York; Mrs. Rebekah Kohut, New York; Mrs. M. B. Schwab, Cleveland.

A Memorial Meeting was held for two deceased members, Mrs. Dora K. Wile, of Denver, and Mrs. Ida Block, of Kansas City.

The constitution was revised, the most important changes being the addition of a Committee on Reciprocity of five members, to arrange for the interchange of visits of speakers between the Sections, and to maintain a bureau where papers and addresses delivered before the Sections shall be kept, and from which they may be secured by the Sections; and the addition of a Committee on Junior Sections of five members, to organize Junior Sections of girls and boys between thirteen and eighteen years of age.

The following resolutions were adopted:

1. Believing that the freest interchange of thought and expression is vital to the developing spirit of Judaism and necessary to a knowledge of its tendencies,

Resolved, That the Council stands for individual freedom of conscience in matters of religious belief.

2. Be it resolved, That we believe that every religious school board be composed of women and men.

3. We earnestly ask the women to attend services at the synagogue and to use their efforts to urge others to do likewise.

4. Be it resolved, That women shall use their efforts for the recognition of their privileges in the congregational life in the community in which they live obligatory upon men which shall entitle them to membership and consequently representation.

5. Be it resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that no Section shall officially participate in any public action involving a violation of the Sabbath.

6. Whereas, It is believed that the greater part of the misery of our Jewish poor is the consequence of over-crowded tenement houses and that the law regulating the number of persons dwelling in one room has thus far been ineffectual or inoperative,

Be it resolved, That we recommend the adoption of the system compelling the janitor to keep a record of the number of occupants of each room, and that the Sections thoroughly discuss the tenement question in their different meetings.

7. Resolved, That we put ourselves upon record as upholding the traditional morality of the Jewish youth; and that the Jewish woman be urged to energize her efforts to maintain this standard.

8. Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that an expression of our appreciation be sent to Messrs. Labori, Demange, Picquart and Zola, for the noble-hearted, self-sacrificing manner in which they championed the cause of justice and humanity.

9. Whereas, The women of this convention will return to their homes through the length and breadth of this great land with new ideas and larger outlooks; thinking less of self and more of others; strong in principle yet respectful and sympathetic toward others; believing the national work of more importance than that of any one Section.

Be it resolved, That it is the sense of this session that it is not what we get from, but what we give, to our General Treasury, not money treasury, but our general fund of knowledge and experience, that makes our work great.

Junior Sections have been formed in Baltimore, Louisville and Salt Lake City.

The work of the Council has been extended to England. In June, 1899, in connection with the International Council of Women, a meeting of Jewish women was held, at which the purposes of the Council were explained by Miss Sadie American, Chicago. Corresponding Secretary, Miss Julia Richman, New York, and Mrs. Frederick Nathan, New York. In consequence, "Study Circles" have been formed, eight in London, with a membership of 200, and six in other towns.

QUINQUENNIAL CONVENTION

The Quinquennial Convention of the Order took place in Chicago, from April 29 to May 3, 1900. Chairman of the Convention, Victor Abraham, of Cincinnati; Secretary, Dr. S. B. Wolfe, of New York City; 73 delegates present, of whom 58 had votes.

Among the subjects acted upon were the following:

The nationalization of the Denver Jewish Hospital for Consumptives was unanimously agreed upon, and an annual contribution of 25 cents per capita enacted into a law.

Close co-operation between the Order and the Jewish Chautauqua was agreed upon. It was resolved to appropriate annually the sum of $200 for propaganda purposes in each district, provided that the district accepting this sum shall appropriate an equal sum from its funds, and so make provision for the expenses entailed by courses of lectures.

The subject of the Relief of the Galician Jews was urged upon the consideration of the Convention by District No. 8 (Germany) and District No. 10 (Austria). The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we not only sympathize with the horrifying and disheartening condition in Galicia, but we will co-operate with our brethren and lodges in foreign countries for the perfection and materialization of such measures as will afford substantial and radical relief.

Resolved, That we request our Lodges, and admonish them to organize at once auxiliary societies in this country in which the co-operation of all Israelites is solicited for giving aid and assistance to this movement.

Resolved, That if the Order shall be called upon to assume the lead in co-operation with European Lodges, congregations, and charitable institutions in Germany, Austria, France, and England, the Executive Committee shall be empowered to delegate the fullest authority to an administrative board composed of the representatives of the Order, these institutions to take the organization of the relief work in hand, and make such dispositions as is deemed best adapted for the realization of the object aimed at.

Resolved, That we deem the establishment of Lodges in Galicia as the best instrumentality in effecting the moral elevation of the Jews of that country, such Lodges to co-operate with the schools established by the Baron de Hirsch funds.

Resolved, That we solicit the co-operation of all kindred associations, the Alliance Israélite Universelle, Jewish Colonization Association, Deutsch-Israelitischer Gemeindebund, the Austrian Union of Congregations, the Union of Hebrew Congregations, Free Sons of Israel, and Sons of Benjamin, etc.

It was decided to prepare a new ritual for the Order; a committee was appointed, and funds were appropriated.

The office of Chancellor of Foreign Affairs was created.

The next session will be held at New Orleans in 1905.

C.

Income of last fiscal year, $352.

Meets biennially in May. Last meeting June 11, 12, 13, 1900.

The objects of this association are to discuss the problems of charity and to promote reforms in their administration; to provide uniformity of action and co-operation in all matters pertaining to the relief and betterment of the Jewish poor of the United States, without, however, interfering in any manner with the local work of any constituent society.

The work outlined for the near future is: to regulate the evil in the transportation of transients from one community to another; to bring about uniform and remedial action in the cases of family desertion; to consider the alarming increase of pulmonary consumption among the dependent classes, and to inaugurate, if possible, a national organization, to take efficient action to restrain the spread of this disease by the establishment of a sanatorium or sanatoria in sections of the country best adapted to the cure of tuberculosis.

At the meeting in June, 1900, papers were read by Professor Morris Loeb, New York, "Federation vs. Consolidation of Jewish Charities in a City"; Dr. M. Reitzenstein, New York, "Relations of Bad Housing and Poverty"; Morris Goldstein, Cincinnati, "Causes of Poverty and the Remedial Effects of Organized Charity"; Dr. Lee K. Frankel, New York, "Tuberculosis as affecting Jewish Charities"; Dr. C. R. Henderson, Chicago, "Co-operation between Public and Private Charities"; Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Chicago, "The Place of the Individual in Modern Philanthropy"; Rev. Dr. E. Calisch, Richmond, "The Problems of Jewish Charities in the Smaller Cities"; Mrs. S. Pisko, Denver, "Progress in Jewish Charity"; Miss Minnie F. Law, Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Miss Hannah Marks and Dr. Lee K. Frankel, on various aspects of Friendly Visiting.

The reports of the following committees were discussed: On Transportation; on Desertions; on Friendly Visiting; on Uniform Records and Statistics.

The following action was taken: It was agreed to return a "transient" to the city of his permanent residence, at the expense of the latter; a telegraphic code was adopted; Home Bureaus for Dependent Children and Loan Associations were referred to special committees; the card envelope method of registry and a record of the cause of poverty and the relief afforded were recommended; uniformity in the preparation and printing of annual reports, as well as the establishment of a library of sociological and charity literature was suggested.

THE ORTHODOX JEWISH CONGREGATIONAL UNION OF AMERICA

A convention of Orthodox Congregations met in New York, Wednesday, June 8, 1898. Lewis N. Dembitz, Esq., was called to the chair, and Mr. D. Levine acted as secretary; fifty Congregations were represented. The following provisional officers were elected: President, Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes; Vice-Presidents, Rev. Dr. P. Klein, Rev. Meldola de Sola, Rev. Dr. H. W. Schneeberger, Mr. K. H. Sarasohn; Secretaries: for English, Max Cohen; for Hebrew, I. Buchhalter.

A resolution favoring Zionism was adopted.

A resolution was passed making the Orthodox Jewish Congregations in America an established society.

The principles of the convention adopted are as follows:

"This Conference of delegates from Jewish congregations in the United States and the Dominion of Canada is convened to advance the interests of positive Biblical, Rabbinical and Historical Judaism.

"We are assembled not as a synod, and, therefore, we have no legislative authority to amend religious questions, but as a representative body, which by organization and co-operation will endeavor to advance the interests of Judaism in America.

"We favor the convening of a Jewish Synod specifically authorized by congregations to meet, to be composed of men who must be certified Rabbis, and

a) Elders in official position (Cf. Numbers xi. 16);

b) Men of wisdom and understanding, and known amongst us (Cf. Deut. i. 13);

c) Able men, God-fearing men, men of truth, hating profit (Cf. Exodus xviii. 21).

"We believe in the Divine revelation of the Bible, and we declare that the prophets in no way discountenanced ceremonial duty, but only condemned the personal life of those who observed ceremonial law, but disregarded the moral. Ceremonial law is not optative; it is obligatory.

"We affirm our adherence to the acknowledged codes of our Rabbis and the thirteen principles of Maimonides.

"We believe that in our dispersion we are to be united with our brethren of alien faith in all that devolves upon men as citizens; but that religiously, in rites, ceremonies, ideals and doctrines, we are separate, and must remain separate in accordance with the Divine declaration: 'I have separated you from the nations to be Mine.' (Lev. xx. 26.)

"And further, to prevent misunderstanding concerning Judaism, we re-affirm our belief in the coming of a personal Messiah, and we protest against the admission of proselytes into the fold of Judaism without millah and tebilah.

"We protest against intermarriage between Jew and Gentile; we protest against the idea that we are merely a religious sect, and maintain that we are a nation, though temporarily without a national home, and

"Furthermore, that the restoration to Zion is the legitimate aspiration of scattered Israel, in no way conflicting with our loyalty to the land in which we dwell or may dwell at any time."

The following are extracts from the Constitution:

The organization shall be known as the Orthodox Jewish Congregational Union of America.

The objects of this organization shall be the promotion of the religious interests of the Jews in America, and the maintenance of the welfare of Orthodox Jewish Congregations in America.

All Orthodox Jewish Congregations in America shall be eligible to membership and entitled to representation in the meetings of the Union, on application for membership to the executive committee.

All questions of Orthodoxy in connection with the admission of members shall be conclusively acted upon by a sub-committee of five rabbis, to be appointed by the executive committee; said rabbis to be members of the conference.

The Union shall hold a regular annual meeting at such time and place as shall be designated by the preceding meeting. Special meetings of the Union may be called at any other time and place on the call of the executive committee, on the written request of at least ten congregations of the Union.

Each congregation affiliated with the Union shall pay as annual dues, in the following manner: congregations having fifty members or under, $5; congregations having over fifty members, $10.

This constitution may be amended by a vote of two-thirds of the delegates present at two successive meetings of the Union.

Addresses were delivered by Lewis N. Dembitz, Esq.; Rev. Dr. S. Schaffer, of Baltimore; Rev. Meldola de Sola, of Montreal;

Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes, of New York; and Rev. Dr. Joseph H. Hertz (now of Johannesburg, South Africa).

The conference organized itself permanently by the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the representatives of the Orthodox Jewish Congregations in America, assembled in conference in the city of New York, this 18th day of Sivan, in the year 5658, hereby express their sense of the need of the formation and maintenance of a permanent organization of the Orthodox Jewish Congregations in America to promote the religious interests of the Jews in America and to further the welfare of the Orthodox Congregations in America, and said representatives hereby agree to organize, and do organize, the Orthodox Jewish Congregational Union of America; to formulate and adopt a constitution for the government of said Union; and to elect the officers to be provided for by said constitution.

And to adopt, as the religious principles of the Orthodox Jewish Congregational Union of America, the declaration of principles adopted by the Conference on the 18th day of Sivan, 5658, and the said principles shall never be changed as long as three congregations shall adhere to them.

Permanent officers were elected as follows: President, Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes; First Vice-President, L. N. Dembitz, Esq., of Louisville, Ky.; Second Vice-President, S. Solis Cohen, M. D., of Philadelphia; Third Vice-President, Dr. A. Friedenwald, M. D., of Baltimore; Fourth Vice-President, K. H. Sarasohn, of New York City; Treasurer, Jacob Hecht, of New York City; Secretaries, Rev. Dr. Drachman and Max Cohen; Trustees: Rev. Dr. Mendes, Rev. Dr. Klein, Rev. Dr. De Sola, Rev. Dr. Schaffer, Rabbi Bachrach, Rev. Dr. Drachman, Rev. Dr. J. H. Hertz, Rev. Dr. Schneeberger, L. N. Dembitz, Dr. A. Friedenwald, S. M. Roeder, Joseph Blumenthal, Dr. Cyrus Adler, Dr. S. Solis Cohen, K. H. Sarasohn, Jacob Hecht, L. Napoleon Levy, J. Silverman, Max Cohen, Isaac Lass and Max Deutschman.

These resolutions were adopted:

That in all towns where the number of congregations warrants, a local Union be formed, each congregation to be represented by the rabbi or minister, the president and one other lay delegate. The said local Union shall organize as it deems best.

The objects of the said local Union shall be:

1st. To strengthen congregational life but not to interfere in congregational autonomy.

2d. To advance the interests of the local Judaism by the appointment of any of the following committees or others as may be deemed necessary:

Congregational membership; civil legislation; committee on Jewish presentations; city religious work (mission, circuit preaching); committee appointed to devise uniform methods in Hebrew and religious schools; Union to send out rabbis for propaganda under the direction of the Executive Committee.

(Chairman); Samuel Woolner, 317 Perry Av., Peoria, Ill.

Members: 91 Congregations, comprising 8936 contributing members.

Income of last fiscal year, $31,921.10.

Board meeting June and December.

Organization meets third Tuesday in January biennially. The Seventeenth Council will be held in Cincinnati, O., January 15, 1901.

Objects: A.—To establish and maintain institutions for instruction in the higher branches of Hebrew literature and Jewish theology, with the necessary preparatory schools in such cities as may hereafter be designated.

B.—To establish relations with kindred organizations in other parts of the world, for the relief of the Jews from political oppression, and for rendering them such aid for their intellectual elevation as may be within reach of this Union.

C.—To promote the religious instruction of the young by the training of competent teachers, and generally encourage the study of the Scriptures and of the tenets and history of Judaism.

The Sixteenth Council of the Union was held in Richmond, Va., December 6, 1898. The President delivered an annual address and reports of the Secretary, Treasurer, Examining Committee, Board of Governors of Hebrew Union College, Librarian, Board of Delegates on Civil and Religious Rights, Committee on Circuit Preaching and Hebrew Sabbath School Union were presented.

The report of the Committee on Circuit Preaching showed that 122 visits had been made, covering 17 States and 47 towns; 7 Sabbath Schools and 2 Congregations were organized; 20 Rabbis participated in the work.

The Honorable Simon Wolf delivered the oration. The following resolution in relation to Zionism was adopted:

"While we are aware of and deplore the abject conditions to which many of our brethren are subjected in foreign lands, and which have naturally, but unfortunately, aroused in some of them a yearning for a re-establishment in Zion, yet we delegates of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations in convention assembled, in view of the active propaganda being made at present for the so-called Zionistic movement, deem it proper and necessary to put ourselves on record as follows:

"We are unalterably opposed to political Zionism. The Jews are not a nation, but a religious community. Zion was a precious possession of the past, the early home of our faith, where our prophets uttered their world-enduring thoughts, and our psalmists sang their world-enchanting hymns. As such, it is a holy memory, but it is not our hope of the future. America is our Zion. Here, in the home of religious liberty, we have aided in founding this new Zion, the fruition of the beginning laid in the old. The mission of Judaism is spiritual, not political. Its aim is not to establish a State, but to spread the truths of religion and humanity throughout the world."

Receipts during 1899-1900, $2649.61.

The third annual convention took place June 11-12, 1900, in New York. Accredited delegates present, 99. Chairman of the convention, Professor Richard Gottheil; Vice-Presidents, Rabbis S. Schaffer, H. Masliansky and M. S. Margolis; Secretaries, I. D. Morrison, H. Krieger and G. Blumberg.

The first session was opened by Dr. S. Schaffer. The address of welcome was delivered by Dr. D. Blaustein, and the reports of the President, the Secretary and the Committee on Propaganda were received. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. H. P. Mendes, of New York, and Mr. Moses Klein, of Philadelphia.

At the second session, committees were appointed; an address was delivered by Charles Hoffman, Esq., on "The Relation of Zionism to Other Jewish Movements"; and a new constitution was adopted.

At the third session, the Treasurer's report was received, and an address delivered by David Levine, on the Z. B. T. Fraternity.

The delegates to the Zionist Congress in London were instructed as follows:

(1) That the convention does not consider Cyprus a place in which to colonize Jews, and it firmly adheres to the idea of establishing colonies in Palestine and Syria only.

(2) That the Congress is urged to get up an international exposition of Palestine products, agricultural and otherwise, the exposition to be transported from city to city and from country to country, so as to give ocular demonstration of the products of the Jewish colonies in the Holy Land.

(3) That the Congress is requested not to recognize any delegates from America but such as are delegated by this convention.

(4) That mindful of the inestimable services the "Nadiv" of Paris has rendered to Israel by his overwhelming benevolence in establishing and maintaining many of the Jewish colonies of Palestine, the Congress is urged to give public recognition to Baron Edmond de Rothschild, the gentle father of most of the Jewish colonies of Palestine.

(5) That the "Actions Committee" is requested to decline to accept Shekalim from individual American societies, but to accept them only from the Federation as Landesverband.

(6) That the delegates are to endeavor to induce Dr. Theodor Herzl to visit America and thus strengthen the movement in this country.

The Federation has published the following brochures:

The Aims of Zionism, by Professor Richard Gottheil (1898-99).

The Progress of Zionism, by Herbert Bentwich, LL. B. (1898-99).

George Eliot as a Zionist (extracts from Daniel Deronda) (1898-99).

The Modern Hep! Hep! Hep! by George Eliot (1899-1900).

Judaism and Zionism (in Yiddish), by Abner Tannenbaum (1899-1900).

An Epistle to the Hebrews, by Emma Lazarus (1899-1900).

The following recommendations contained in the officers' reports were accepted: To refer the two Hebrew grammars submitted to a committee of five; to print the proceedings of the Convention of the Federation and of the International Convention to be held in London; to print a pamphlet containing authoritative information concerning Palestine and the colonies; to print Pinsker's Auto-Emancipation in English; to publish a monthly Zionist magazine; to offer a prize of $50 for the best essay on one of the following subjects: Disraeli and George Eliot; Emma Lazarus and Michael Heilprin; Pinsker and Mohilever.

A public meeting was held at Cooper Union on the evening of June 11. The following delivered addresses: Rev. Drs. G. Gottheil, S. Schaffer, H. Iliowizi, H. Masliansky, Joseph H. Hertz, S. S. Wise and B. Drachman, and Drs. M. Mintz and R. L. Halperin. A collection was taken up for the Bessarabian famine sufferers.

National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives, Jackson and Colfax. Building begun by citizens of Denver, 1890; opened December 10, 1899, having been recognized as a national institution by District Grand Lodge No. 2, Independent Order B'nai B'rith, in Louisville, in 1899, and placed by it under a provisional board of control, consisting of seven members. Hitherto supported by voluntary subscriptions; $20,492.72 collected from September, 1899, to May, 1900. Accepted by the Constitutional Convention of the Order B'nai B'rith, held at Chicago in 1900, and a per capita annual tax of its members ordered, with the recommendation that a corporation be formed under the laws of the State of Colorado. This recommendation and the plan of the provisional board was adopted as follows by District Grand Lodge No. 2:

That a corporation be formed under the laws of the State of Colorado, not for pecuniary profit, which shall take charge and control of this institution on the 1st day of January, 1901. That the corporation be controlled by thirty-five national trustees, of which seven are to be elected by the seven districts of the Order of B'nai B'rith of the United States, being one for each district, eight additional from District Grand Lodge No. 2, of which three shall be residents of Denver, and twenty national members-at-large from all parts of the United States, to be selected by the several cities, societies, bodies and individuals who will have contributed to the support of the Institution. These thirty-five are to make the laws for the government of this Institution, as well as to provide in these laws for membership and for the election of trustees thereafter. Besides the National Board, there is in charge for the management of the Institution a committee of eleven residents of the city of Denver, called the Board of Managers, and which board is composed as follows:

Chairman, Alfred Muller; Vice-Chairman, Louis Anfenger; E. Monash; Meyer Friedman; Henry Frankel; Lesser Levy; David May; L. H. Guldman; Mesdames E. Pisko; M. S. Appel; A. W. Weil.

Application must be made to the director residing at or nearest to the place of the applicant.

"No applicant or patient shall be sent or come to Denver until application blank has been filled out and forwarded to the hospital authorities at Denver, and he or the local committee has been notified that patient will be admitted into the institution. Any patient or applicant coming to Denver before being first so notified is debarred from admission at any time.

"Return transportation, and that patient shall not become a charge upon the community in case it is necessary for him to remain in Colorado after his discharge from the hospital, must be guaranteed by some responsible party at time of application.

"The family of the patient, if dependent, must not be sent to Denver.

"Local committees will ascertain whether applicant has made correct statement and also that guarantor is responsible.

"Applicants should be informed that the limit of stay in the hospital is six months."

President, Samuel Grabfelder, Louisville, Ky.; Vice-President, Sol. W. Levi, Cincinnati, Ohio; Treasurer, Louis Anfenger, Denver, Colo.; Secretary, Alfred Muller, 523 Ernest and Cranmer Bldg., Denver, Colo. Trustees: Dr. S. Wolfenstein, Cleveland, Ohio; Ben. Altheimer, St. Louis, Mo.; Sol. S. Kiser, Indianapolis, Ind. Number of patients treated until May, 1900, 68; discharged 16 as sufficiently recovered; 11 died. No pay accepted, and only those admitted who are unable, for want of means, to procure necessary care and medical aid. It is intended to double the capacity this year by additional buildings. Present annual expenses, $22,000; in its doubled capacity, $35,000. As the management hitherto has been of a provisional nature, no membership could be arranged for. The contributions received up to this time came mainly from lodges of the Independent Order B'nai B'rith, from Jewish Charity Associations in different cities, and donations from individuals. Future support is expected from regular membership contributions in addition to the per capita annual tax of 6¼ cents to be levied on the members of the Order.

SUMMARY OF JEWISH ORGANIZATIONS IN THE UNITED STATES

BY CHARLES S. BERNHEIMER, PH. D.

The activity of the Jews of the United States, their power of organization, and their efforts to develop the religious, intellectual and social life are well exemplified in the data gathered in this Year Book. I shall endeavor to point out some of the features of this development and to draw some conclusions from the valuable statements which have been presented here, with the purpose of indicating the strength and growth of the movements throughout the country making for the progress of Jewish work and the promotion of Jewish ideals. It will not fall within the scope of this review to criticise particular activities, but rather to attempt to estimate their force in connection with the general effect.

There is put before us a record of national movements, showing considerable esprit de corps among large numbers of Jews, together with a great variety of local organizations distributed all over the United States, indicating wide activity among all elements of Jews in the different communities in which they have settled. There are religious organizations, educational institutions, charitable societies, social agencies, which go to the making of a strong communal life. There can be no question that Jewish work as it is now being developed in the United States is, as a whole, creditable. The shortcomings of the individual bodies must be remedied by growth in understanding and sentiment.

Congregational union is represented by two organizations, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Orthodox Jewish Congregational Union of America. They are representative respectively of the Reform and Orthodox elements of Judaism in this country. Many of the large congregations are in these two unions, but a majority of the congregations, as recorded in this Year Book, are not included in either of them. The total number of congregations is 791; the Union of American Hebrew Congregations numbers 91, and the Orthodox Union 50. Still, a mere comparison as to numbers is not conclusive. Many of the congregations in-included in this list are, doubtless, barely organized. Over one-third of the total number, marked to show that no official information has been received from them, give no membership or other data. A large number of the congregations, moreover, are composed of the recently immigrated population, and have not been able to adapt themselves to the conditions of a national federation. With these considerations in view, the two unions may be regarded as representative of the congregationally organized force of the community of older residents. The Union of American Hebrew Congregations has gained in strength with the growth of years, since it was organized in 1873. The Orthodox Union has been but recently established, in 1898.

An offspring of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations is the Hebrew Union College, at Cincinnati, O., founded in 1875, from which 77 rabbis and teachers have been graduated, most of whom occupy pulpits as ministers.

From the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York there have been 10 graduates.

The Central Conference of American Rabbis, organized in 1889, is composed of 4 honorary and 144 regular members.

The Society of American Cantors, organized in 1894, whose object is to develop the music of the synagogue, has a membership of 10.

The Hebrew Sabbath School Union of America, established in 1886, is an organization of 85 schools, whose purpose is the promotion of Sabbath School instruction.

The Jewish Chautauqua Society, established in 1893, has organized circles for the study of Jewish history and literature in many places; has had a Summer Assembly at Atlantic City, N. J., for four years in succession; and is now organizing a bureau for lectures on Jewish subjects to be given to such communities as desire them.

The Council of Jewish Women, organized in 1893, has a membership of about 5000, distributed among 47 sections situated in various States of the Union. Its object is not only the study of Jewish history and literature, but also the improvement of work done in religious schools and the practice of modern methods of philanthropy. The practical work depends upon conditions in the respective cities, and its varied character is shown in the maintenance or futherance of kindergartens, mission schools, vacation schools, boys' and girls' clubs, classes in domestic economy, and work among prisoners.

The Jewish Publication Society of America, established in 1888, is an organization of about 5000 members well distributed, in about six hundred towns and cities, all over the country. The number of members and the distribution are indicative of far-reaching influence. The society's purpose is the dissemination of Jewish literature. It has published thirty-three volumes.

Following out another line, the American Jewish Historical Society, organized in 1892, has issued 8 volumes relating to the settlement and history of the Jews on the American Continent. The purpose of the society is to develop research and to preserve the material collected as the result.

The latest of the national forces to promote religious development is the Federation of American Zionists, organized in connection with the international Zionist movement. It contains a goodly number of societies in various cities, with an especially large contingent in New York city. These societies are being made centres of educational effort, particularly among the recent immigrant populations, and may become an important factor in the promotion of local intellectual and religious activity, apart from the Zionist propaganda.

The various Orders have established lodges in cities all over the Union, and the influence of individual lodges depends largely upon local conditions. Where the membership is composed of immigrants of the past twenty years, an important purpose is sustained in familiarizing the members with American conditions. Districts of the Independent Order B'nai B'rith and the Kesher Shel Barzel have established educational and philanthropic institutions in several cities.

Turning now to the local religious and educational movements, we find some sort of activity in forty-six States and Territories, the only four not represented being Arizona, Idaho, North Dakota and Wyoming. The total number of congregations, as stated at the outset, is 791. To this should be added the communities, not organized, which hold holiday services either in their own or in neighboring cities. The number is subject to possible modification owing to the lack of authentic data from some of the cities or congregations.

The membership of the congregations may be assumed to be about fifty thousand. This is allowing about five thousand for the congregations—over one-third of the total number—for which no membership was reported. It may seem like a very small allowance, but there is no basis for calculation except minyan (ten), and the membership is probably not much above this number in many instances.

It should be pointed out that this estimated number of fifty thousand is of members and seatholders, that is to say, in most cases, merely the head of the family. If it be assumed that four-fifths are heads or representatives of families, it would mean forty thousand families represented in the synagogue, and that out of the estimated Jewish population of one million persons, or two hundred thousand families, in the United States, four-fifths are "unchurched." It must be remembered, however, that the communities holding or attending holiday services have not been taken into consideration, nor the large number of individuals who, though they have no affiliation with the synagogue the greater part of the year, attend at holiday times. This is, in fact, an exceedingly large percentage, and very greatly lessens the proportion of the "unchurched." It is known, however, from general observation, that during the holidays the attendance at synagogue is very much larger than the membership, and that there are comparatively few Jews who never go to synagogue or to a Jewish service. The statistical deduction and the general observation can be reconciled only by concluding that, whereas but a comparatively small proportion are members or attend synagogue at short regular intervals, an exceedingly large proportion has at least some degree of synagogue affiliation, and does not belong to the class of the "unchurched" in the broad sense of the term.

The following cities have nine or more congregations: San Francisco, 9; Chicago, 47; Baltimore, 27; Boston, 14; Newark, (N. J.), 9; Brooklyn, 25; New York, 62; Cincinnati, 13; Cleveland, 13; Philadelphia, 50.

These cities, therefore, contain about one-third the total number of congregations reported, but they include a still larger proportion of the estimated total Jewish population of the country.

Schools for the study of Jewish religion and allied subjects are attached to many of the congregations. Auxiliary societies, either for educational, for philanthropic, or for social purposes, also form part of the congregational activity in a number of places.

Besides congregational schools, there are Sunday and Hebrew schools established by societies composed of members of older residence, many for the benefit of children of recent immigrants.

The educational activities recorded in the Year Book do not show fully the actual efforts being made in behalf of Jewish education, inasmuch as there are a large number of small Hebrew private schools (chedarim) established among the Russian Jewish populations.

The effort to promote the study and practice of agriculture is met by the Agricultural and Industrial School established in 1894 at Woodbine, N. J., by the Baron de Hirsch Fund, and the National Farm School at Doylestown, Pa., established in 1896. The Jewish Agriculturists' Aid Society of America, at Chicago, has helped farmers in Western States. The Jewish Colonization Association has made loans to farmers, chiefly in Eastern States, and has assisted in colonization. The Baron de Hirsch Fund has co-operated with the movement to develop agriculture and colonization.

The chief city through which the Baron de Hirsch Fund operates is New York, where the great majority of the immigrants arrive. The other cities with which it regularly cooperates are Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston and St. Louis.

In the article on Jewish Statistics in this Year Book, it will be observed that the number of immigrants who arrived in New York city during the past year was 43,507; that the number for Baltimore was 2439, Philadelphia not being reported. The total for New York city from 1885 to 1900 was 460,517, and the total for the whole country from 1881 to 1900—that is, the entire period since the persecution of the Jews in Russia, beginning in the early "eighties," was 593,896.

The magnitude of this immigration has made a very difficult problem for the Jews previously resident here, as well as for those in the general community who have endeavored to promote the welfare of the newcomers.

Before their arrival it was estimated that the United States had a Jewish population of a little over two hundred thousand.[1] Now, within twenty years, between two and three times the number of immigrants have been added—immigrants who have required serious attention and provision in respect to temporary shelter, sustenance, work, English education, industrial education, general training, to enable them to adapt themselves to the new environment. The educational and philanthropic organizations which have been established for the various purposes have been kept busily engaged looking after the multifarious needs. And with the present increasing emigration from Roumania, in addition to the steady stream from Russia and the other Eastern European countries, the necessity for these organizations is as great as ever.

It should be noted that among the societies recorded in this book are chevras and other organizations established by immigrants of the past twenty years, intended to aid their fellow-Jews. Individually, they may not make a large showing as to financial receipts and expenditures, but they stand for considerable mutual help and for valuable aid to those less fortunately situated than their constituents.

The Educational Alliance in New York city is the centre of educational work which reaches thousands. The Hebrew Technical Institute, the Hebrew Technical School for Girls, the Baron de Hirsch Trade School, the Clara de Hirsch Home for Working Girls are New York institutions conducting work in practical education. In Brooklyn, the Hebrew Educational Society is established; in Philadelphia, the Hebrew Education Society; in Boston, the Hebrew Industrial School; in Chicago, the Jewish Training School; in St. Louis, the Hebrew Free and Industrial School Society—all for some sort of industrial education. Schools, kindergartens, and day nurseries have been established in many cities for general education and training.

Personal philanthropic work is well exemplified by the Federation of Sisterhoods of New York city, a union of the sisterhoods attached to the congregations and of other societies composed of women, co-operating with the United Hebrew Charities. The city is divided into sixteen districts, and one sisterhood or society is responsible for a district. They maintain kindergartens, clubs, do friendly visiting, and help the neighborhoods generally. Sisterhoods and personal service societies have been organized in others of the large cities for the performance of similar work. Among these may be noted the Emanu El Sisterhood of San Francisco, the Daughters in Israel of Baltimore, the Sisterhood of Personal Service of St. Louis, and the Council Educational Alliance of Cleveland.

The Jewish Charity Relief Societies of the leading cities have formed a national organization for purposes of co-operation, without, however, interfering with the autonomy of the individual societies. This is the result of a meeting of representatives held in 1899, and is another evidence of the centralizing power of our social forces.

It will be noted that in several of the cities, a number of the philanthropic organizations have federated, usually for the uniform collection of funds for the constituent bodies. Such are the Federation of Jewish Charities of Boston, the Associated Jewish Charities of Chicago, the United Jewish Charities of Cincinnati, and the Union of Jewish Charities of Detroit.

Orphan homes and societies have been established in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Brooklyn, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Newark (N. J.), New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Rochester and San Francisco. The Home at Atlanta is supported by lodges of District No. 5, Independent Order B'nai B'rith; that at Cleveland by the lodges of Districts Nos. 2, 6 and 7, Independent Order B'nai B'rith; and that at Rochester by residents of Rochester, Syracuse and Buffalo.

Homes for the Aged exist in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond (Va.), St. Louis, San Francisco and Yonkers (N. Y.). The institution at Cleveland was established by District No. 4, Order Kesher Shel Barzel, and that at Yonkers is supported by District No. 1, Independent Order B'nai B'rith.

Hospitals exist in Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, Denver, New York, New Orleans, Philadelphia and San Francisco. St. Louis reports a hospital organization in process of formation, with a fund already in hand, and Omaha a hospital association which expects to open a building for hospital work next year. Hot Springs, Ark., reports the formation of a society for bringing attention to the necessity of a hospital at that place.

Much of the philanthropic work in the several cities is done by means of benevolent societies, a large number conducted by the women of the community, as is manifested by the term "Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Society," or a similar name, which recurs repeatedly in the Directory of Local Organizations in this volume.

The writer has endeavored to bring out the trend of development of our important communal activities. Details relating to the work of the individual societies are given in the national and local directories of this Year Book.

The directory of local organizations shows the following result by States. Cemeteries, social organizations and those whose character could not be determined have not been included.

Of the 415 educational organizations, 291 are religious schools attached to congregations, having an attendance of about 25,000 pupils under 1127 teachers. There are also included among the educational organizations 27 free religious or Hebrew schools, chiefly in the large cities, with about 11,000 pupils and 112 teachers. Where there was no report as to the number of teachers, an estimate of one for each fifty pupils or fractional portion thereof was counted.

JEWISH REPRESENTATIVE BODIES

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

The central organization of every Jewish community is called Cultusgemeinde, which has the right to assess its members according to the needs of its budget, and which governs all matters relating to the synagogue, the ritual, education, relief of the poor, etc. This does not preclude the formation of independent societies and institutions supported by those interested in them. In Vienna, besides the Cultusgemeinde there is a Turkish-Israelitish community of Sephardim, established as early as 1737, which governs its own affairs.

The representative bodies are the following:

Israelitische Allianz. Headquarters, Vienna I, Weihburggasse No. 10. Founded 1873. The purposes are: 1. To promote popular education among Israelites by the erection or subvention of schools and by other means. 2. To offer effectual support to Jews in whatever part of the world they suffer in their quality as Jews. Besides, the society seeks to promote Jewish statistical and historical work. President, David Ritter von Gutmann; Vice-Presidents, Drs. Alfred Stern, Alfred Kuranda, Sigmund Wahrmann; Secretary, Dr. Friedrich S. Krauss. A Council of 15 members. Branches in Triest, Czernowitz, and Przemysl.

Oesterreichisch-israelitische Union. Headquarters, Vienna IX, Berggasse 20. Founded 1886. Purpose: To note and take action in all matters affecting the welfare of Jews in the Austro-Hungarian empire. President, Wilhelm Anninger; Vice-Presidents, Drs. S. E. Ehrmann and Jacob Kohn; Secretary, Josef Fuchs. Governed by a body of 6 trustees and 13 councillors. The society publishes a year book and a journal. During the past year, the society devoted itself chiefly to the ritual murder cases of Polna, Nachod, Wildenschwert, and Nameszto; distributed documents proving the groundlessness of the charge; supplied legal aid to the accused, as well as to the victims of the excesses in Moravia and Bohemia; continued its investigations of conditions in Galicia; proposed to the Jewish Colonization Association the plan of introducing clothing manufactories and the Swiss embroidery trade in Galicia; gave its support to Israel Araten in his effort to trace his daughter Michalina; and intervened, usually with some degree of success, with the Imperial Government, in a number of cases in which anti-Semites sought to injure Jews in life, property, and honor.

Oesterreichisch-israelitischer Gemeindebund (not active at present).

BOHEMIA

The national and representative organizations of Bohemia are the following:

Centralverein zur Pflege jüdischer Angelegenheiten. President, Imperial Councillor Philipp Falkowitz; Vice-Presidents, Ludwig Pick and Samuel Weltsch; Secretary, Dr. Theodor Weltsch. Council of 35 members.. The work is done in five sections.

Israelitischer Landeslehrerverein. Association of the rabbis, religious teachers, cantors, and teachers of Bohemia. Founded 1873. President, Sigmund Springer, Prague; Vice-President, Rabbi S. Abeles, Kuttenberg; Secretary, Rabbi M. Freund, Bodenbach; Treasurer, Rabbi M. Zinner. Trustees, 3.

Reprasentanz der Landesjudenschaft des Königreiches Böhmen (Federation of the Jewish Communities of Bohemia). Bohemia is divided into the following thirteen districts: Prague, Jungbunzlau, Budweis, Caslau, Chrudymer, Eger, Königgrätz, Leitmeritz, Pisèk, Saaz, Jicin, Pilsen, Tabor. One representative is chosen by each. Chairman, Dr. J. U. Moritz Lichtenstein, of the Prague district; Vice-Chairman, Dr. Emanuel Kraus, of the Jungbunzlau district. The Federation administers nine endowments.

HUNGARY

The national organizations of Hungary are the following:

Israelitischer Landes-Lehrerverein. Union of teachers. President, Julius Kornfeld; Vice-Presidents, Jacob Reif, Philipp Csukási; Secretary, Jacob Hajnel.

Israelitisch-ungarischer Literaturverein. Literary union. Presidents, Dr. Philipp Weinmann, Dr. William Bacher; Secretary, Dr. Josef Bánóczi.

BELGIUM

In Belgium the administration of religious and Jewish communal affairs is in the hands of the Central Consistory. Grand-Rabbin, Armand Bloch.

ENGLAND

The Congregations of the British Empire form a union by virtue of the jurisdiction of the Chief Rabbi, The Very Rev. Dr. Herman Adler.

Another body of Jews, the Spanish and Portuguese Congregations, are under the jurisdiction of the Rev. Haham, Dr. Moses Gaster.

In London two great unions of synagogues exist:

Federation of Synagogues. Honorary President, The Rt. Hon. Lord Rothschild; President, Sir Samuel Montagu, Bart.; Secretary, J. Blank, 119 Farleigh-road, Stoke Newington, N. 7 Elders. Synagogues federated, 25.

United Synagogue. Founded 1870. President, The Rt. Hon. Lord Rothschild; Vice-Presidents, Henry Lucas, Esq., Albert H. Jessel, Esq.; Secretary, P. Ornstien. Council of 122 members. 14 constituent bodies with 4185 male and 2297 female members. The work of the United Synagogue is done under the following heads: Burial of the Poor; Institutions Visitation Fund; East End Synagogue; Soldiers' Services; Beth Hamedrash; Cheap Marriage Rates. It purposes in the near future to establish associate synagogues in the outlying districts of London.

The representative associations are the following:

Anglo-Jewish Association, Blomfield House, 85, London-wall, E. C. Founded 1871. President, Claude G. Montefiore; Secretary, M. Duparc; Council consisting of 63 members. Branches in 37 towns in Great Britain and the Colonies. The chief objects are the protection of persecuted Jews and the education of Jews in Eastern countries. The latter object is carried out in co-operation with the Alliance Israélite Universelle. Outside of Jerusalem, 27 schools in the East (with 10,738 pupils), most of them founded by the Alliance, are subventioned by the Association; in 1899-1900 this subvention amounted to £1245. In Jerusalem, the Association has under its special charge the Evelina de Rothschild School, the only school for Jewish girls in that city. During the past year the Association sent two members of its Council, Miss Olga d'Avigdor and Mr. Walter S. Cohen to Palestine to report on the needs of the school and on conditions generally in Palestine. The Association co-operates closely with the Jewish Colonization Association. At the recent Conference convened in Paris to consider the Jewish situation in Roumania, the Association was represented by three delegates, Messrs. Claude G. Montefiore, the president, B. Kisch and H. Landau.

Deputies of the British Jews, 29 Finsbury-circus, E. C. Founded 1760. President, Sir Joseph Sebag Montefiore; Vice-President, D. L. Alexander; Secretary, Charles H. L. Emanuel, M. A. Fifty-five deputies from London, provincial, and colonial synagogues. Triennial meetings. Takes action, when necessary, with regard to legislation affecting British Jews, and co-operates with the Anglo-Jewish Association in matters affecting foreign Jews.

FRANCE

The central body of French Jews is the Consistoire Central, whose seat is at Paris, rue de la Victoire, 44. It consists of 12 members, the Chief Rabbi and a representative of each of the 11 circumscriptions into which France is divided: Paris, Bordeaux, Marseille, Nancy, Lyon, Lille, Bayonne, Besançon, Epinal, Constantine, and Algeria. The members are: Grand-Rabbin Zadoc Kahn; President, Alphonse de Rothschild; Henri Aron; Bernard Lazare, Théodore Lévy, Eugéne Manuel, David Masse, Eugéne Pereire, Ely Rodrigues, Abraham Sée, Henri Deutsch de la Meurthe, Abraham Cahen, and the delegate from Algeria. Secretary, Abraham Cahen.

Each circumscription has its own consistorial organization, consisting of the grand-rabbin and from two to seven members.

The two largest Jewish representative bodies have their headquarters at Paris:

Alliance Israélite Universelle, rue de Trévise, 35. Honorary President, Grand-Rabbin Zadoc Kahn; President, Narcisse Leven; Secretary, Jacques Bigart. (See pp. 45-65.)

The Jewish Colonization Association (Baron Maurice de Hirsch's Foundation). President, M. Narcisse Leven. Annual meeting of shareholders held June 10, 1900.

Abstract of the Annual Report:

The Association has been active in Argentina, the United States (see pp. 74-75), Canada, Palestine, Cyprus, Asia Minor, Russia, Roumania, and Galicia.

Colonies.—In Argentina, 50 new families are about to be settled at Moisesville; on the whole the harvests were of medium excellence, enabling a portion of the colonists to pay the annuity; in Entre Rios groups are beginning to break away from the original settlement.

In Canada, Hirsch comprises 20 families of agriculturists, among them, 15 that went there at their own expense; the harvest was excellent. In Palestine, a system of mixed cultivation has been introduced, so that the colonists need not depend solely on viticulture. The colonies founded and hitherto maintained by Baron Edmond de Rothschild have been ceded to the Association. In Cyprus, the colony of Margo Tchiflik has been brought under the control of the Association, and agriculturists from Palestine and Mikveh Israel were installed as colonists; the means of irrigation have been improved; the harvest consisted of wheat, barley, vetch, oats and cotton. In Russia, the Association granted loans, some of which have been repaid in part, to 1300 families of agriculturists, greatly improving their situation.

Industries.—In Jerusalem, a weaving work-room and knitting machines were introduced. In Russia, the Association is interesting itself in a spinning factory, and in Galicia it taught the making of toys and baskets. Besides, it granted subsidies to two institutions for promoting handicrafts in Austria-Hungary.

Schools, etc.—Schools for elementary instruction were opened at Hirsch (Canada), Moisesville, Mauricio and Entre Rios (Argentina). The Association subsidizes 20 schools in Roumania. Agricultural education and industrial training for boys and girls have been promoted particularly in Russia and Russian Poland. In educational work, it co-operated closely with the Alliance Israélite Universelle.

Miscellaneous—A library has been started in Moisesville. Hygienic dwellings for 300 families have been built at Wilna. Land has been purchased at Tiberias (Palestine) and in Asia Minor (Or Jehuda). Besides, the Association has seconded the action of societies in Germany, England and Smyrna, which interest themselves in unfortunate Jews from various points of view.

GERMANY

Deutsch-Israelitischer Gemeindebund (Union of the Jewish Congregations of Germany), 5 Sigismundstrasse, Berlin W. Founded 1885. Honorary President, Dr. S. Kristeller;[1] President, Professor M. Philippson, Ph. D.; Vice-Chairmen, G. Josephthal, Nuremberg; Benjamin Hirsch, Halberstadt; Treasurer, Th. Lustig; Secretary, Professor Blashke; Trustees: 26. Delegates of the constituent congregations: 100. Provincial unions of congregations belonging to the general union, 10, comprising 279 congregations; congregations not affiliated with provincial unions belonging to the general union, 574; individuals, members and donors, 677. Biennially the Union publishes a Statistical Year Book, reporting data concerning the Jews and the Jewish institutions of upwards of 3000 towns. In the intermediate years an appendix of corrections and additions is published, and annually several Mittheilungen (now numbering 53) at irregular intervals. The Year Book and the Mittheilungen also reproduce all legislation affecting the Jews of the German Empire. The Union controls the following: Deutsch-israelitische Darlehnskasse für Frauen und Jungfrauen; Philippson Stiftung (in aid of needy ministers); Herxheimer-Stiftung (provides support for Jewish theological students); Friedrich-Wilhelm-Victoria-Stiftung (central insurance fund for Jewish officials); Zunz-Stiftung (for the science of Judaism); Samuel Kristeller-Stiftung (for the support of artisans and apprentices). It embraces the following departments: The promotion of trades-education among Jewish young men and women and of the education of trained nurses; the Pedagogic Division; department for the establishment of courses of instruction for academically trained teachers of the Jewish religion; department for courses of instruction for cantors; and department for the statistics of the German Jews. Furthermore, it embraces two commissions: The Commission on the History of the Jews in Germany (publishes historical material); and the Commission for the suppression of itinerant begging, the organization of poor relief, the establishment of employment bureaus and workrooms. Finally, it has established a Jewish library of 5000 works. With the help of the Jewish Colonization Association, the Union is about to establish an Industrial Colony at Weissensee, near Berlin.

Verband der Vereine fur judische Geschichte und Literatur in Deutschland (Union of Associations for Jewish History and Literature). President, Dr. Gustav Karpeles, Berlin; Vice-President, Dr. Frank, Cologne; Honorary Secretary, Dr. Hirsch Hildesheimer, Berlin; Treasurer, Oscar Berlin; Trustees, 5; Secretary, Albert Katz, Rosenstrasse 17, Berlin C. Constituent societies in 133 towns, with a membership reported of 11,232; lecturers, 110, who delivered 478 lectures during 1898-1899. Provincial unions, 5. Publishes a Year Book containing essays of a literary and scientific character.

Verband der judischen Lehrervereine im Deutschen Reiche (Association of Jewish Teachers Unions). Founded 1895. Constituent local unions, 18, with about 900 members, about two-thirds of all Jewish teachers in the German Empire. Trustees: Dr. Adler, Berlin; Blumenfeld, Adelebsen; Bernhard, Tarnowitz; Dr. Blashke, Berlin; Feiner, Hamburg; Graf, Essen; Gutkind, Cassel; Steinhardt, Magdeburg; Sturmann, Osterode; Wertheimer, Heldenbergen. Subventioned by the Deutsch-israelitischer Gemeindebund.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF JEWS WHO HAVE SERVED IN THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES

MICHAEL W. ASH was born in Pennsylvania. He was a Representative in the 24th Congress, from that State, from 1835 to 1837, serving as a member of the Committee on Naval Affairs.

JUDAH P. BENJAMIN attained eminence as a member of the United States Senate, as Cabinet officer of the Confederate government, and as a member of the bar. He was born at St. Croix in 1811 and reached Charleston, S. C., about 1816. He received a classical education at Columbia (S. C.) College. After many changes of residence, he finally settled in New Orleans, La., and was admitted to the bar there. In 1834 he wrote "A Digest of Reported Decisions of the Supreme Court of Louisiana." In 1845 he was a member of the State Constitutional Convention; in 1847, a United States Commissioner; in 1848, a Presidential Elector for Louisiana; and in 1852 was elected to the United States Senate, and re-elected in 1859, resigning his seat on the secession of his State. He became identified with the Confederate cause, and was Attorney-General and Acting Secretary of War of the Provisional Government of the Southern Confederacy. In February, 1862, he was appointed Secretary of State of the Confederacy, which position he held until its fall in 1865. He settled in London, England, after the war, and was made Queen's Counsel for Lancaster. During his residence abroad he wrote his celebrated treatise "On Sales." He died in Paris, France, in May, 1884.

EDWIN EINSTEIN, of New York City, was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, November 18, 1842. He removed, in 1846, to New York, where he has since resided. He received a collegiate education at the College of the City of New York, and entered Union College, but was not graduated. He has always been engaged in mercantile pursuits. He was elected, as a Republican, from the 7th District, New York, to the 46th Congress.

NATHAN FRANK, of St. Louis, Mo., was born in Peoria, Ill., February 23, 1852. He was educated in the public schools of Peoria and St. Louis, and at Washington University. He was graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1871. He is a member of the St. Louis bar and the author of "Frank's Bankrupt Law." He was the Republican nominee from the 9th District, Missouri, for the 50th Congress, but was defeated. He was re-nominated by the Republican and Union Labor party, and was elected to the 51st Congress as a Republican.

EMANUEL B. HART, of New York, was born in that city, October 29, 1811. He early entered upon a mercantile career. He went to the Spanish Main as a supercargo, and settled in New York as a commission merchant. He served for a time in the Board of Aldermen of New York City. He was a Representative in Congress from New York from 1851 to 1853. He was at one time a Lieutenant-Colonel of the State Militia. He was appointed by President Buchanan Surveyor of the Port of New York, and subsequently made an Excise Commissioner. He was frequently a member of the State and National Conventions of the Democratic party.

JULIUS HOUSEMAN, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was born in the village of Leckendorf, in Bavaria, Germany, December 8, 1832. He received a common-school and commercial education. He was engaged for thirty years in mercantile business and the manufacture of lumber. He held the office of Alderman in the city of Grand Rapids from 1861 to 1870 inclusive. In 1871 and 1872 he was a Representative in the State Legislature. In 1873 and 1875 he was Mayor of Grand Rapids. He was elected to the 48th Congress, as a Democrat, from the 5th District, Michigan.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN JONAS, of New Orleans, La., was born at Williamstown, Grant Co., Ky., July 19, 1834. He removed with his father to Adams Co., Ill., where he received his education. In 1853 he removed to New Orleans, where he studied law and received a diploma from the law department of the University of Louisiana in 1855. He joined the Confederate Army as a private of artillery, served as such and as Acting Adjutant of the artillery of Hood's Corps in the Army of Tennessee, until the end of the war. He was elected a member of the Louisiana Legislature in 1865, and served until reconstruction. In 1868 he was Chairman of the Louisiana Delegation to the Democratic National Convention. He was the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor of Louisiana in 1872, but gave way on the formation of the fusion ticket. In 1872 he was elected to the State Senate, and adhered to the McEnery government, refusing to take his seat in the Kellogg Legislature. He was elected City Attorney of New Orleans in 1874 and re-elected in 1876. He was a member of the Louisiana Legislature in 1876 and 1877, and Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House. He was a member of the Democratic National Committee from Louisiana, and was elected to the United States Senate, as a Democrat, to succeed James B. Eustis, taking his seat March 18, 1879. His term of service expired March 3, 1885.

JULIUS KAHN, Republican, of San Francisco, Cal., was born at Kuppenheim, Grand Duchy of Baden, on the 28th day of February, 1861. He removed with his parents to California in 1866, and was educated in the public schools of San Francisco, having been a member of the class of 1878 of the Boys' High School. After leaving school, he entered the theatrical profession, which he followed for ten years, playing with Edwin Booth, Joseph Jefferson, Tommaso Salvini, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Florence, Clara Morris and other well-known "stars." In 1890 he returned to San Francisco and began to study law. In 1892 he was elected to the Legislature of the State of California, serving during the 30th session. In July, 1893, he was elected Secretary of the Finance Committee of the California Midwinter International Exhibition. In January, 1894, he was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of California. He was elected from the 4th District, California, to the 56th Congress.

DAVID S. KAUFMAN, of Sabinetown, Tex., was born in Cumberland Co., Pa., in 1813. He was graduated at Princeton College in 1833. Not long after, he removed to Natchez, Miss., and read law in the office of Gen. Quitman. In 1835 he settled in Natchitoches, La. In 1837 he emigrated to Nacogdoches, in Texas, and in 1838 he was elected a Representative in the Texan Congress. He was twice re-elected and twice chosen Speaker of the House. In 1843 he was elected to the Senate, and from the Committee on Foreign Relations, in 1844, presented a report in favor of annexation, and took an active part in its consummation. In 1845 he was appointed Chargé to this government, but that office was superseded by the final act of annexation. He was elected one of the first members of the House of Representatives from Texas, serving from 1846 to 1851. He died in Washington, D. C., January 13, 1851.

LEWIS CHARLES LEVIN was born in Charleston, S. C., Nov. 10, 1808. He early removed to Woodville, Miss., becoming a school teacher. Soon after a duel with an opponent, in which Mr. Levin was wounded, he left that town, and having read law, followed this profession in different States of the Union, viz., Maryland, Kentucky, Louisiana and Pennsylvania. In 1838 he took up his residence in Philadelphia, and was subsequently admitted to the bar in that city. He espoused the cause of temperance, and edited the "Temperance Advocate." He became known as a speaker and a writer, and to him is generally ascribed the formation of the Native-American Party in 1843. Its cause he assisted by the publication of "The Sun," a daily paper, devoted to its interests. The new party won supporters, and as its representative Mr. Levin was elected to the House of Representatives three successive terms, serving from 1845 to 1851. His importance as a member of Congress was recognized in various ways, and he served as Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs. He died in Philadelphia, March 14, 1860.

JEFFERSON M. LEVY, Democrat, of New York City, was born in New York. He is a son of Capt. Jonas P. Levy and a nephew of Commodore Uriah P. Levy. He was educated in the public schools and subsequently completed a course at the University of the City of New York. He studied law with the late Clarkson N. Potter, and having been admitted to the bar of the State of New York, was associated with him in various important litigations. Although active in public affairs and prominent in party work, he has never until now held public office. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, of the Board of Trade and Transportation, of the Real Estate Exchange, and of numerous clubs and other organizations, and was for many years vice-president of the Democratic Club. Commodore Levy, in 1830, at the suggestion of President Jackson, acquired Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, and at his death Mr. Jefferson Levy became the owner. The homestead is maintained by Mr. Levy in keeping with its distinguished traditions. Mr. Levy was elected from the 13th District, New York, to the 56th Congress.

LUCIUS NATHAN LITTAUER, Republican, of Gloversville, New York, born January 20, 1859, in that city; removed to New York City in 1865, where he received his preliminary education; entered Harvard University and was graduated in 1878. He then engaged in the glove manufacturing business in Gloversville with his father, to which he succeeded in 1882. He was elected to the 55th Congress and re-elected to the 56th for the 22d District of New York.

MITCHELL MAY, Democrat, of the borough of Brooklyn, was born in that city, July 11, 1871. He was educated in the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and in the law school of Columbia University, from which he was graduated in 1892. He was elected to the 56th Congress for the 6th District of New York (Brooklyn).

ADOLPH MEYER, of New Orleans, was born October 19, 1842. He was a student at the University of Virginia until 1862, in which year he entered the Confederate Army and served until the close of the war on the staff of Brigadier-General John S. Williams, of Kentucky. He returned to Louisiana, and has been engaged largely in the cultivation of sugar and cotton since, as well as in commercial and financial pursuits in the city of New Orleans. He was elected Colonel of the Louisiana State National Guard in 1879, and in 1881 was appointed Brigadier-General to command the First Brigade, embracing all the uniformed corps of the State. He was elected, as a Democrat, from the 1st District, Louisiana, to the 52d, 53d, 54th, 55th and 56th Congresses.

LEOPOLD MORSE, of Boston, Mass., was born at Wachenheim, Bavaria, August 15, 1831. He received a common-school education at Wachenheim and came to the United States in early life. He is a merchant. He was twice elected a delegate to the National Democratic Convention. He was elected, as a Democrat, to the 45th, 46th and 47th Congresses, representing the 4th District, Massachusetts; to the 48th Congress, representing the 5th District, Massachusetts; and to the 50th Congress, representing the 3d District, Massachusetts.

LEONARD MYERS, of Philadelphia, Pa., was born at Attleborough, Pa., November 13, 1827. He received a liberal education. He studied and practiced law and digested the ordinances for the consolidation of the city of Philadelphia. He was solicitor for two of the municipal districts of Philadelphia. He was elected, as a Republican, from the 3d District, Pennsylvania, to the 38th, 39th, 40th, 41st, 42d and 43d Congresses.

HENRY MYER PHILLIPS was born in Philadelphia, June 30, 1811. He received a liberal education, subsequently read law, and was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia in 1832. For some years he followed criminal law practice with marked success, and afterwards gave his attention to civil law, by the practice of which he amassed a fortune, finally ranking as one of the best constitutional lawyers in the country. In 1856 he was elected, as a Democrat, from the 4th District, Pennsylvania, to the 35th Congress, and during his term figured conspicuously in the debates, especially during the discussion on the admission of Kansas as a State to the Union. On the expiration of his term, he declined to accept any other political office, though frequently urged to become the Democratic candidate for Mayor of Philadelphia. He was prevailed upon, however, to accept numerous positions in educational, charitable and financial institutions, and was a Commissioner of the Board of City Trusts, having control of the Stephen Girard Estate, and was made president of that board. He was also chosen President of the Board of Directors of the Academy of Music, President of the Fairmount Park Commission, Director of the Pennsylvania Company of Insurance and Annuities, Director of the Pennsylvania and other railroad companies, of the Jefferson Medical College, Western Union Telegraph Company, and other corporations. He also served as Grand Master of Free Masons of the State of Pennsylvania. He was a patron of the fine arts. He died April 28, 1884.

PHILIP PHILIPPS was born in Charleston, S. C., December 13, 1807, and was educated at the Norwich Military Academy, in Vermont, and at Middletown, Conn. In 1825 he commenced the study of law in Charleston, and on the day after attaining his majority was admitted to the bar. He entered public life by becoming a member of the "Nullification Convention," in 1832, and voted with the minority. In 1834 he was elected, for two years, to the State Legislature; in 1835 he resigned. He removed to Mobile, Alabama, and practiced his profession with success. In 1837 he was elected President of the Alabama Democratic State Convention. In 1844 he was elected to the Legislature, and was Chairman of the Committee on Federal Relations. In 1849 he was President of an "Internal Improvement Convention." In 1851 he was again elected to the Legislature. In 1852 he went to the "Baltimore Convention." He was a Representative in Congress from Alabama, from 1853 to 1855, and declined a re-election. He remained in Washington, D. C., and practiced his profession there.

ISIDOR RAYNER, of Baltimore, Md., was born April 11, 1850. He was educated at the University of Virginia, and was admitted to the bar in Baltimore in 1870, and has been practicing law since that time. In 1878 he was elected to the Maryland Legislature for two years, and was chosen Chairman of the Baltimore City Delegation. In 1886 he was elected to the State Senate from Baltimore for four years. He was elected, as a Democrat, from the 4th District, Maryland, to the 50th, 52d and 53d Congresses, and is at present the Attorney-General of the State of Maryland.

JOSEPH SIMON, Republican, of Portland, Oregon, was born in Germany, in 1851, and came to this country with his parents when but one year old. He has resided in Portland since 1857, and received his education in the public schools of that city. In 1872 he was admitted to the bar. He was elected to the City Council of Portland in 1877, and served as a member of that body three years. He was appointed Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee in 1878, and managed the State campaign of that year; was chosen Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Oregon in 1880, 1884 and 1886, and had charge of the State and National campaigns of those years in Oregon. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention, which met in Minneapolis in 1892, and was there selected as the member of the National Committee for Oregon. He was elected to the State Senate from Multnomah Co. in 1880, 1884, 1888, 1894 and 1898, and was chosen President of the Senate at the sessions of 1889, 1891, 1895 and 1897, and at the special session of 1898. He was elected to the United States Senate, October 6, 1898, to fill a vacancy that had existed since March 4, 1897. His term of service will expire March 3, 1903.

ISIDOR STRAUS, of New York City, was born in Bavaria, February 6, 1845. He came to this country in 1854 with his mother and settled in Talbotton, Ga., where his father had previously provided a home. He was educated at Collinsworth Institute and was preparing to enter the West Point Military Academy when the breaking out of the war prevented him from doing so. He removed to New York City in 1865, where his father founded the mercantile firm of L. Straus & Sons in 1866. He entered the firm of R. H. Macy & Co., New York, in 1888, and the firm of Abraham & Straus, of Brooklyn, in 1893. He has been connected with various tariff and currency reform movements. He is the representative of New York City on the New York and New Jersey Bridge Commission. He was elected from the 15th District, New York, at a special election held on January 30, 1894, to fill the unexpired term of Ashbel P. Fitch, to the 53d Congress.

MYER STROUSE was born in Germany, December 16, 1825. He came with his father to the United States in 1832 and settled in Pottsville, Pa. He received an academic education and subsequently studied law. From 1848 to 1852 he edited a newspaper in Philadelphia, called the "North American Farmer," after which he devoted himself to the practice of his profession. In 1862 he was elected a Representative from the 10th District, Pennsylvania, to the 38th Congress, serving on the Committee on Roads and Canals. He was re-elected to the 39th Congress, serving on the committees on Territories, Expenses, the Interior Department, and Mines and Mining.

DAVID L. YULEE was born in the West Indies, but when quite young removed to Virginia, where he received the rudiments of a classical education. He emigrated to Florida in 1824, and divided his time between the practice of law and the pursuit of agriculture. He was a Delegate to Congress from the Territory of Florida from 1841 to 1845, bearing the name of Levy, and, as Yulee, was a Delegate to the convention which framed the State Constitution. In 1845 he was elected a Senator in the 27th Congress, where he continued until 1861, officiating as Chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. He was also President of the Atlantic and Gulf Railroad of Florida. He withdrew from the Senate to take part in the Civil War, and at the close of the conflict was confined in Fort Pulaski as a prisoner of state.

PRELIMINARY LIST

JEWISH SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

WHO SERVED IN THE

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR

INTRODUCTION

At the Seventh Annual Meeting of the American Jewish Historical Society held at Philadelphia December 26, 1898, it was announced that Dr. J. H. Hollander, of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, had been requested to collect details respecting the names, ranks and services of Jews who were in the United States Army and Navy during the Spanish-American War.

Later on it was arranged that the preliminary list should appear in the American Jewish Year Book for 1900-1901, with the understanding that the final list would be published by the American Jewish Historical Society.

About the beginning of the present year, Dr. Hollander formulated a plan and began the work, when he was requested to go to Porto Rico for what was supposed to be a temporary service. I agreed to carry on the correspondence, meanwhile intending to turn the work over to Dr. Hollander upon his return. A little later came his appointment to the very honorable post of Treasurer of Porto Rico and the necessity for his relinquishment of work upon this list.

I accordingly determined to continue it. The sources for the present list are as follows: For officers of the Army and Navy, the official registers; for non-commissioned officers and enlisted men in the Army and Navy, the Jewish newspapers and private information, since the War Department muster-rolls are inaccessible; for the volunteer troops organized by the various States, the rosters where published and again private information and the Jewish press. There are scores of individuals all over the country to whom I am indebted for important aid. Their names will be given in the final publication. Where names are starred, I have no evidence that the persons are Jews, and have judged simply by the name; this statement does not apply to the New York State list, where practically no stars are given, although the Jewish identity has not been established in every case. If, perchance, men who are not Jews find their names in these lists, I am sure they will not object to being in the company of those with whom they suffered privations and fought for a common country.

To save persons who will be called upon to criticize this list any trouble or undue expenditure of time, I will point out some of its most glaring defects. It is inconsistent and inconvenient in arrangement; it contains names which should have been omitted, and omits names which should have been included; it frequently gives names incorrectly or with insufficient data or under wrong commands, and it even contains some repetitions. These faults are mentioned so that those who might otherwise be obliged to give their time in discovering them will use it in aiding me to correct them.

It may not be unnatural for some readers to enquire why, if the Editor was conscious of all these faults, the publication of the list was not delayed until it could be made more perfect, and the answer is, that the improvement by waiting would have been inconsiderable, but a publication of this rough list at once gives the opportunity whilst the war and the organization of regiments and companies is fresh in mind to the five thousand and more members of the Jewish Publication Society of America to aid in its correction and improvement. Every Jew in the United States is interested in this work, and each one can do something toward it. Will they send their corrections at as early a date as possible to the address given below?

CYRUS ADLER,

MASSACHUSETTS

Prepared by Philip Tworoger

The Jews of Massachusetts, during the late Spanish-American war, were not a whit behindhand in displaying their patriotism; immediately after the declaration of war in April, 1898, scores of Jewish young men applied at the various armories throughout the State, but owing to the fact that the militia organization of Massachusetts is so thorough, but a small proportion of the applicants were accepted, nevertheless there were about 100 Jewish young men from Massachusetts who wore Uncle Sam's uniform during the war.

Owing to the fact that the muster rolls are now in use at the Adjutant-General's office, and will not be open for public inspection before September 15th, the writer has been unable to obtain the names of all the Hebrews serving in the various regiments, but by inquiry among the various regimental officers who served during the last war he has been able to get the number of Jewish young men in each of the regiments.

The 1st Massachusetts Regiment Heavy Artillery, which was the first volunteer regiment mustered into the United States service, contained 11 Jews, divided among the various batteries as follows: Battery B, 3; Battery E, 2; Battery L, 1; Battery I, 3; Battery K, 2.

The 2d Massachusetts Regiment, which served in Cuba, and was brigaded together with 71st New York Regiment, contained 7 Jews, 2 from Springfield in Company K, 3 from Worcester, 1 in Company A and 2 in Company H; 2 from Northampton in Company I.

In the 6th Massachusetts Regiment, the writer himself served, and he is therefore able to give the names of those who served with him. It contained five (5) Jews, divided among the various companies as follows:

PHILIP TWOROGER, of Boston, in Company A.
JOHN HAMBERG, of Adams, in Company B.
JACOB OSTREICHER, of Lowell, in Company C.
BENJAMIN BAKER, of Lowell, in Company C.
ALFRED J. HERMANSON, of Boston, in Company H.

The 6th Regiment left Charleston, S. C., on the Yale, which carried General Miles to Cuba on July 8, 1898, and was at Santiago, but owing to the fact that Santiago surrendered, was not landed; the regiment, however, was taken to Porto Rico, being the first American regiment to be landed on that island, and took part in the engagement at Guanica on July 26, 1898.

The 9th Massachusetts Regiment contained a larger proportion of Jews than any other Massachusetts Regiment, owing to the fact that it is almost exclusively a Boston regiment; there were twenty-two (22) Jews in that regiment. The 9th Regiment took part in the battle of Santiago, being brigaded with the 1st District of Columbia Volunteers.

The 8th Massachusetts Regiment, which was not fortunate enough to do active service, contained only two (2) Jews, both in Company I of Lynn.

The 5th Massachusetts Regiment, which was not called into the United States Service until the second call for volunteers, and which did not see active service, contained eight (8) Jews, divided as follows: Company E, of Medford, three (3); Company F, two (2); Company L, two (2); Company M, one (1).

There were also ten (10) Jews in the Massachusetts Naval Militia, and a large number of them enlisted at Boston during the war and served in the Regular Army.

In addition to the above, there was an independent company composed exclusively of Hebrews formed in Boston, of which Samuel H. Borofsky, present representative to the Massachusetts Legislature from the Sixth Suffolk District, was Captain, but owing to the fact of the short duration of the war, this company was never mustered into the United States service.

To this may be added:

J. H. KRUPP, Corporal, Co. E, 9th Mass. Vol. Inf.
FRED. E. SULZMAN, Corporal, Co. M, 5th Mass. Vol. Inf.

JEWISH STATISTICS

The statistics of Jews in the world rests largely upon estimates. In Russia, Austria-Hungary, Germany, and a few other countries official figures are obtainable. In the main, however, the numbers given are based upon estimates repeated and added to by one statistical authority after another. In spite of the unsatisfactoriness of the method, it may be assumed that the numbers given are approximately correct. For most countries the census of 1890 is employed, though where later trustworthy information is at hand it has been utilized.

THE UNITED STATES

As the census of the United States has, in accordance with the spirit of American institutions, taken no heed of the religious convictions of American citizens, whether native-born or naturalized, all statements concerning the number of Jews living in this country are based upon estimate, though several of the estimates have been most conscientiously made.

The Jewish population was estimated

In 1818 by Mordecai M. Noah at	3,000
In 1826 by Isaac C. Harby at	6,000
In 1840 by the American Almanac at	15,000
In 1848 by M. A. Berk at	50,000
In 1880 by Wm. B. Hackenburg at	230,257
In 1888 by Isaac Markens at	400,000
In 1897 by David Sulzberger at	937,800
In 1899 by the American Jewish Year Book at	1,043,800

The following table by States is a modification of that given in the previous Year Book and is based upon new estimates secured from many sources. It is believed to be more accurate than any previous table.

Alabama	8,000	Georgia	6,135
Arizona	2,000	Hawaiian Islands	20
Arkansas	4,000	Idaho	2,000
California	25,000	Illinois	95,000
Colorado	8,000	Indiana	25,000
Connecticut	8,000	Iowa	6,000
N. and S. Dakota	3,500	Kansas	3,000

New Hampshire	1,000	Washington	2,800
New Jersey	25,000	West Virginia	1,500
New Mexico	1,500	Wisconsin	15,000
New York	400,000	Wyoming	1,000
North Carolina	12,000
Ohio	50,000	Total	1,058,135
Oregon	5,500

The total Jewish immigration to the United States, through the ports of New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, from 1881 to July 1, 1900, was 593,896, with Philadelphia not reported since 1898. This does not take into account immigration through Canada or at ports other than those mentioned above. The immigration at the port of New York from July 1, 1899, to June 30, 1900, was as follows:

Austrians	14,923
Danes	9
Dutch	12
English	95
French	14
Germans	394
Roumanians	5,920
Russians	22,045
Swedes	12
Turks	83	43,507
Males	17,379
Females	10,803
Children	15,325	43,507
Remained in the city	34,463
Left the city	9,044	43,507

At the port of Baltimore the immigration from July 1, 1899, to June 30, 1900, was 2439.[1]

SELECTED HEBRAICA AND JUDAICA

Compiled by ISRAEL ABRAHAMS

The following list contains a selection from works published during the past year on the Hebrew Bible, the Hebrew language, Biblical and Post-Biblical Jewish theology, literature and history. Rabbinica and mediæval and modern Jewish history and literature are included. The list is arranged alphabetically by the authors' names. No articles in Periodicals appear in this list, and this unfortunately implies the exclusion of much of first-rate importance. Works on Semitics generally are also omitted, and the same remark applies to New Testament literature.

MEETING OF THE TWELFTH YEAR

The Annual Meeting of the Jewish Publication Society of America was held on Sunday afternoon, May 20, 1900, in the Assembly Room of the Keneseth Israel Temple, Broad Street above Columbia Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

The President, Mr. Morris Newburger, called the meeting to order.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Berkowitz, of Philadelphia, offered prayer.

President's Address

The President delivered an address, as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen:—On an occasion like this, to which the members and friends of the Society have been invited from far and near, it is well to take a retrospective view of what the Society has done, to take into consideration its present condition, the unfinished work, and the future plans of the Society.

"It affords me pleasure to inform you that the Society is in good financial condition. We have no debts; there is a good balance in the treasury; we have a large stock of books; and a number of collectable, and—I am sorry to say—also a number of uncollectable membership bills.

"We have published during the last year the 'Year Book,' Zangwill's 'They that Walk in Darkness,' Miss Miller's 'Under the Eagle's Wing,' and the first part of Professor Lazarus' 'Ethics of Judaism.' They show the varied character of the Society's books and the constant effort which is made to reach different classes of readers.

"I wish to publicly thank Dr. Cyrus Adler for his unselfish work in compiling and editing, gratuitously, the Year Book.

a task so great that few would or could undertake it. The work will in time become invaluable as a reference book, as it is the intention of the Society to make its publication a yearly feature, and it will also include the proceedings of the yearly meetings and a list of the members of the Society.

"We have on hand manuscripts for publication which should prove highly attractive.

"Our members should bear in mind that while it is possible that all the publications which the Society issues in any year may not appeal to any one reader, works of fiction, which are the most generally read, must from time to time give way to historical and scientific books. If the Society is to maintain its position as an educational institution, it must publish literature for information, as well as literature which is designed to entertain.

"There is constant evidence of a growing interest in Jewish literature by both Jews and non-Jews. The Society may congratulate itself on having materially contributed to the creation of this interest. Inquiries constantly reach us concerning the publication of the Talmud in English, and the date of the publication of the English translation of the Bible which we have already undertaken. We are asked regarding desirable Jewish publications for libraries and as to authentic books on various Jewish topics. All this speaks of the value of the Society as an educational factor.

"We have added during the past year about one thousand new members to our list, and have lost very nearly as many by resignation, death, and inability, or unwillingness, to pay. Most of the new members have been obtained through our field-agent, Mrs. Scherman, who since last fall has been traveling through the Western and Southern States.

"It is estimated that there is a population of a million Jews in the United States. This, according to the usual calculation, would represent two hundred thousand families. We have at present five thousand members, and at a very modest calculation, we ought to have at least twenty thousand.

"The Jewish Publication Society is endeavoring to place its literature within the reach of all. The larger its membership, the greater its influence, and we must feel that its task is yet but slightly fulfilled, so long as thousands remain untouched directly by its productions.

"There has been no addition to the Permanent Fund of the Society within the year, a fact much to be deplored. This Fund should by all means be increased. It secures the perpetuity of the Society; and were it large enough, the income therefrom would help materially to enhance the Society's usefulness. Donations, bequests, and life-memberships make up the Fund. The Society simply asks a share of the benefactions from those who are able and willing to give to public purposes. Its influence is so patent, and its educational work so broad, that this appeal surely merits favorable consideration.

"There is another special project to which I desire to call your attention—that of the Bible translation. The editors and translators are still busy with their work. Our endeavor is that under the auspices of this Society a Jewish Bible for English readers may be published. It remains for the Jews of public spirit to supply the means for compensation and manufacturing, and to enable the Society to sell it at a sufficiently low price to put it within the reach of the largest possible number of our people. You can confer no greater honor upon American Israel than by contributing to the Bible Fund. The Bible will be a tribute to American Jewish scholarship and to American Jewish communal spirit. The committee has fixed $25,000 as the necessary sum, while the amount so far donated is but $3730, an increase of only $615 during the past year. Of the former amount, $2500 was given by Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, and $500 by Messrs. M. Guggenheim's Sons. We welcome contributions from all; and I would ask that the members of the Bible Fund Committee throughout the country be vigorously supported by their respective communities in their efforts to obtain the amount required.

"It has been my earnest hope, from the early days of the Society to the present, that a magazine might be established, presenting interesting essays and criticisms, current Jewish thought, and Jewish ideas of our heritage. We live in a busy age. Large numbers who will not read books will take up and discuss an article in a magazine. The special series which the Society has issued from time to time has in a measure supplied the want for short publications, but many would-be readers find even these too long. The intervals between the publication of our three or four books annually are too lengthy. A magazine would fill the gap. The management of the Society have realized all this, and the importance of issuing a magazine, but with the present means at their disposal have hesitated to undertake so large a venture. I trust that in the near future ways and means will be found to permit its establishment.

"We have received the gratifying news that our English brethren have organized a Jewish Publication Society. We extend to them our congratulations and fraternal good wishes.

We hope that in the near future the two societies will work hand in hand for the accomplishment of the purposes to which they are devoted.

"No twelve-year-old society ever had more auspicious prospects than ours. Judaism in the United States is growing. It is for us to supply constructive organization to blend American Israel into a stable and progressive force. The sterling thought of the Jewish Word is as convincing as ever. It is the function of this Society to spread the knowledge of this Word. It is our hope that Jewish scholarship and learning, which are being developed in this country, will be met more and more by real appreciation among the community in general. We trust that an ever-quickening sense of Jewish intellect and morality will result, and that this will be duly manifested in the support of and devotion to our educational institutions, among which the Jewish Publication Society of America is glad to record itself as a commanding factor.

"You are to elect to-day a President, a Vice-President, a Second Vice-President, five Directors and five Honorary Vice-Presidents. The Board of Directors will elect the other officers and the Publication Committee.

"This address is my valedictory. I have decided to retire from the presidency. I have pointed out to you the great work which the Society has before it. I have arrived at an age when it becomes desirable, even necessary, to lessen, not to increase, my work and responsibilities. For the results to be gained, a younger man, with undiminished energy, ambition and enthusiasm, is needed. Such a man can be found. There are among you men who possess all these requirements, and whose business capacities and equipments will enable them to successfully fill the position. The presidency of this Society is no sinecure. It entails much labor and sacrifices of many kinds; but it is an honor for any man to be at the head of this, the largest, and almost the only, Jewish Publication Society in the world. I am sure you will elect such a man as will make himself worthy of this great distinction.

"Gentlemen of the Board of Directors and of the Publication Board, for twelve years we have labored together, shoulder to shoulder, to make the Jewish Publication Society a factor for the good and the glory of Israel. I bear witness to your devotion to its best interests. Personal opinions and affiliations have never deterred you from doing that which was for the greatest good of the Society. Nothing has ever occurred to mar the cordial relations which prevailed between the two committees. I shall forever cherish for you the highest regard and kindest feelings, and trust that you may be permitted for many years to direct the affairs of the Society, assisted by our Secretaries, Miss Szold and Doctor Bernheimer, both of whom, by their devotion to their duties and zeal for our cause, deserve well of this institution.

"To all who have befriended the Society, and especially to the Jewish clergy, whose co-operation has so materially assisted us in our work, I offer our thanks.

"You, ladies and gentlemen, members and friends of the Society, have ever been kind to me. You have been patient and forbearing. From your large attendance here to-day, I augur well for the future of the Society. Continue your interest in its affairs. Bestow on my successor the same confidence, the same helpful assistance, which you have given to me. You are engaged in a noble work, which, with the blessing of God, will end in universal good to all."

Organization of the Meeting

Nominations for Chairman of the meeting being declared in order, Dr. Cyrus Adler, of Washington, D. C., nominated Dr. Henry M. Leipziger, of New York.

The nominations were, upon motion, closed, and Dr. Leipziger was unanimously elected Chairman of the meeting.

Dr. Leipziger thereupon took the Chair and made an address.

Mr. Charles Hoffman nominated Dr. Charles S. Bernheimer, of Philadelphia, as Secretary of the meeting.

The nominations were, upon motion, closed, and the nominee elected by acclamation.

Report of the Board of Directors

Mr. Samuel M. Hyneman, of Philadelphia, moved that the reading of the Annual Report of the Board of Directors be dispensed with, inasmuch as it was presented to the meeting in printed pamphlets for distribution. Agreed to.

The report is as follows:

The Jewish Publication Society of America has now concluded its twelfth year.

Immediately after last year's meeting, in May, 1899, the Board of Directors elected the following officers: Treasurer, Morris Dannenbaum, of Philadelphia; Secretary, Lewis W. Steinbach, of Philadelphia; Assistant Secretary, Charles S. Bernheimer, of Philadelphia; Secretary to the Publication Committee, Henrietta Szold, of Baltimore. The following were chosen members of the Publication Committee: Mayer Sulzberger, of Philadelphia; Cyrus Adler, of Washington, D. C.; David W. Amram, of Philadelphia; Henry Berkowitz, of Philadelphia; Solomon Solis-Cohen, of Philadelphia; B. Felsenthal, of Chicago; Charles Gross, of Cambridge, Massachusetts; Marcus Jastrow, of Philadelphia; Max Landsberg, of Rochester, N. Y.; Henry M. Leipziger, of New York; David Philipson, of Cincinnati; Samuel Sale, of St. Louis; Simon A. Stern, of Philadelphia; and Oscar S. Straus, of New York. The committee elected Mayer Sulzberger as its chairman.

PERMANENT FUND

The sum of $13.50 has been added to the Permanent Fund since the last report. The Fund now amounts to $17,101.50, as follows:

Michael Heilprin Memorial Fund:
Donation of Jacob H. Schiff	$5,000
Donation of Meyer Guggenheim	5,000
		$10,000 00
Morton M. Newburger Memorial Fund		500 00
Bequest of J. D. Bernd		500 00
Donations		101 50
Life Membership Fund		5,900 00
Bequest (Lucien Moss)		100 00
		$17,101 50

Since the early days of the Society the Fund has but slightly increased, and we have had to report regularly that apparently little interest has been taken in one of the means which will strongly conduce to the permanence of the organization. We sincerely trust that those throughout the country who can afford to contribute to such a Fund, and who have the Society's future at heart, will bear it in mind, so that hereafter we may be enabled to report contributions of sufficient amount to assure an income whereby the Society's work may be promoted and enlarged.

MEMBERSHIP

The membership by States and Territories is as follows:

Alabama	127	New Mexico	4

Total members	5,004
Subscribers (paying $3 per annum)	35
Total	5,039

Of these there are:

Life members	59
Patrons	14
Organizations	7
Members	4,924
Subscribers	35
Total	5,039

Included in the above are 351 members whose dues remain unpaid for the year ending June 1, 1899, and who have not received the publications of the year ending June 1, 1900.

They will be omitted from the roll of membership if their dues are not paid forthwith. There are also included in the foregoing list, 192 members whose resignations take effect June 1, 1900, and 95 members whose subscriptions begin June 1, 1900.

Assuming the membership to be 5039, there is a decrease of 331 from the membership reported last year. As, however, the number of delinquent members that have been included is 125 less than last year, the real decrease is not more than about two hundred.

It is to be regretted that notwithstanding our efforts to increase the membership, we have not progressed as rapidly as was to be expected. The additions, as in previous years, have been secured largely by our agent, Mrs. K. H. Scherman, but all the newly acquired members have hardly made up for the losses through lapses, resignations, and deaths. During the past year Mrs. Scherman has travelled chiefly in the West, Southwest and South. She is now in the State of Texas, and the result is indicated in the increase of membership in that State. If we could steadily hold all the members enrolled, we would soon attain the desired number. We feel assured that much can be done to improve the situation. Reference to the Year Book of the Society (5660, p. 284), where an estimate of the Jewish population of the United States is published, shows how few, comparatively, have enrolled themselves. This is particularly true of New York State, which, though said to contain two-fifths of the Jews in the United States, is represented in the membership by one-sixth of the whole number.

On the other hand, it is satisfactory to note that the Society has reached a large number of communities throughout the country, as is shown by the tabulated membership attached to this report. In certain districts it supplies the only means of Jewish culture. In some cases, the only Jew in a town or the representative of the only Jewish family in a town is a member of the Society. Its intangible influence in thus furnishing literature to Jews who cannot be reached by organized local agencies is not to be lightly estimated.

PUBLICATIONS

The following works have been published since the last meeting:

(1) American Jewish Year Book, edited by Cyrus Adler. (2) "They that Walk in Darkness," by Israel Zangwill. (3) "Under the Eagle's Wing," by Sara Miller. (4) Part I, "The Ethics of Judaism," by Professor Moritz Lazarus, translated from the German by Henrietta Szold.

It is the intention of the Society to publish the last mentioned work in four parts. It is hoped that this work, when completed, will "make clear the inner life of Judaism, as the History of Graetz portrayed the part which the Jews have played in the world."

For the forthcoming year we are enabled to announce the following publications:

The second issue of the Year Book will be published in September, 1900. In it will be incorporated the report of the proceedings of this annual meeting, together with the list of members, heretofore sent out in a separate pamphlet. It will be followed by a story by Samuel Gordon, a volume of poems by Nina Davis, and the second part of Prof. Lazarus' "Ethics of Judaism."

It is hoped that the public will approve the Society's endeavor to cover a wide range of subjects, developing the various phases of the life and thought of the Jewish people, ancient and modern, and that it will appreciate the Society's endeavor to enlist in its service writers who are recognized as leaders in their respective branches.

There are evidences of a growing interest in Jewish subjects, and the Society may claim to have done and to be doing its share in bringing about this result.

It is a pleasure to announce the formation of a similar organization in England. May its work be useful and permanent.

At home, diverse educational activities make use of the works which the Society is publishing. The national organizations, the local culture societies, the Sunday schools, and many individual readers draw upon our resources for the means of furthering their study.

Our publications to the present time comprise thirty-three volumes.

We are indebted to Mr. Jacob H. Schiff for his generous contributions to the Permanent and Bible Funds. During the past year he has placed us and the community under further obligations by supporting the publication of a valuable work in a foreign language, with a reservation to this Society of the exclusive right to publish an English translation without further payment for the author's rights.

THE BIBLE TRANSLATION

We are now enabled to report that one portion of the Bible translation, the Psalms, is nearing completion; so that, if it should be decided to publish in separate parts, this may soon be issued. Other portions are being made ready so that they could follow at fair intervals. Considerable time, however, must elapse before the whole work can be completed, so as to make possible the publication in one volume.

Before we can proceed far with any plans of publication, more funds must be placed at our disposal. The receipts since the last meeting have been but six hundred and fifteen dollars ($615), making the total thirty-seven hundred and thirty dollars ($3730). When it is remembered that the Committee on Bible Fund fixed $25,000 as the sum necessary for defraying the expenses of translating, compiling, publishing and distributing, it will be seen how far from adequate are the amounts thus far obtained. The committee asks for contributions from Jews throughout the country so that the Fund shall be representative of the entire community.

Respectfully submitted by the Board of Directors,

MORRIS NEWBURGER, President.

Discussion

The Chairman announced that the meeting would be open for general discussion relating to the Society's work.

Dr. G. Deutsch, of Cincinnati, referred to errors in the translation of Graetz's "History of the Jews."

Mr. Henry Wotiz, of Philadelphia, suggested collecting all bills of the Society by mail.

Rev. Dr. M. H. Harris, of New York, spoke in favor of the publication of a juvenile magazine.

Dr. Cyrus Adler said that the publication of a magazine would involve one of two propositions: (1) Either raising dues separately for purposes of a magazine, or (2) having members make choice as to which class of publications they desire.

Rev. Dr. Henry Berkowitz suggested having different classes of membership, particularly a class that might make choice of juvenile literature, or substituting other publications therefor.

Mr. Seligman J. Strauss, of Wilkes-Barre, suggested that with reference to the publication of the Year Book the question ought to be considered whether it ought to be issued annually or not; and as to a magazine, it was a distinct business, for which separate arrangements would have to be made.

Mr. Cyrus L. Sulzberger, of New York, suggested the possible omission of some of the material in the Year Book if it was to be an annual publication.

Committees Appointed

The discussion being declared closed, the Chairman announced the appointment of the following committees:

On Nominations: Chairman, Mr. David Sulzberger, of Philadelphia; Mr. Moritz Ellinger, of New York; and Mr. Max Herzberg, of Philadelphia.

On the Part of the Report of the Board of Directors relating to Permanent Fund: Chairman, Mr. Cyrus L. Sulzberger, of New York; Mr. Morris Stern, of Philadelphia; and Mr. Jacob Singer, of Philadelphia.

On the Part of the Report of the Board of Directors relating to Bible Fund: Chairman, Mr. William B. Hackenburg, of Philadelphia; Mr. Philip Cowen, of New York; and Dr. G. Deutsch, of Cincinnati.

On the Part of the Report of the Board of Directors relating to Membership: Chairman, Mr. Samuel M. Hyneman, of Philadelphia; Mr. Ezekiel Sarasohn, of New York; and Mr. Julius Levy, of New York.

On the Part of the Report of the Board of Directors relating to Publications and Bible: Chairman, Dr. Aaron Friedenwald, of Baltimore; Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris, of New York; and Dr. David Davidson, of New York.

A recess was then declared.

Membership

Upon the re-assembling of the meeting, the Committee on the part of the Report of the Board of Directors relating to membership presented the following report:

"Your committee approves of the present method of securing members, by the means of a traveling agent, and suggests the employment of at least one additional canvasser.

"Your committee further suggests that the members of the Society be urged to use their individual endeavors to secure in their respective communities additional members and subscribers."

Mr. Julius Levy added, in behalf of the committee, the suggestion that circles be organized to increase the membership.

The report was adopted.

Permanent Fund

The Committee on the Part of the Report relating to Permanent Fund presented the following report:

"The Committee on Permanent Fund recommends that to increase this Fund a general appeal be made for life members, such appeal to be published through the Jewish press; and in addition, that it be sent to a selected list of possible contributors. The committee believes that a large portion of the membership of the Society is unaware either of the existence of the Fund or of the fact that life-membership dues are added thereto.

"It is further recommended that Committees on Permanent Fund be appointed in every locality in which the Society has a reasonable number of members, with a view of urging the increase of the Permanent Fund through life memberships or contributions.

"Further, that the members of the Society and others interested in its stability be urged to bear the Society in mind when making testamentary disposition of their property, and that a form of bequest be printed with future printed reports of the Society."

The report was adopted.

Publications and Bible

The Committee on the part of the Report relating to Publications and Bible reported:

"The committee gives its cordial endorsement to the works already published, and agrees that the Society has made remarkable use of the resources at hand.

"While it recognizes the necessity of publishing works in the lighter vein to meet the wishes of its miscellaneous readers, the committee would urge the publication in larger measure of works of more lasting value. In this direction, it is glad to learn of the forthcoming issuing of Prof. Lazarus' Ethics.

"It sincerely trusts that the long promised Bible will soon be in the hands of the public, and hopes that a brief commentary will not be missing."

The report was adopted.

Nominations and Elections

To succeed the following directors, whose terms expire—Solomon Blumenthal, of Philadelphia; Herman S. Friedman, of Philadelphia; Daniel P. Hays, of New York; Mrs. Henry Solomon, of Chicago; and Seligman J. Strauss, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—the Committee on Nominations presented the following nominees for directors for three years: Mr. Solomon Blumenthal, of Philadelphia; Mr. Herman S. Friedman, of Philadelphia; Mr. Daniel P. Hays, of New York; Mr. Seligman J. Strauss, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; and Mr. Benj. F. Teller, of Philadelphia.

The Secretary was instructed to cast a ballot for the nominees, and they were duly declared elected.

Mr. David Sulzberger, on behalf of the Committee on Nominations, then presented the name of Mr. Morris Newburger, of Philadelphia, as President, for one year.

Mr. Newburger declined the nomination.

Mr. Moritz Ellinger, Rev. Dr. M. Jastrow, Mr. Jacob Singer, and Mr. William B. Hackenburg urged a withdrawal of the declination.

Mr. Hackenburg moved that Mr. Morris Newburger be elected President of the Society for one year by a rising vote.

Mr. Newburger withdrawing his declination, the question was put, and Mr. Newburger was unanimously elected by a rising vote, and was duly declared elected.

Bible Fund

The Committee on the Part of the Report relating to Bible Fund submitted the following:

"Your Committee on Bible Fund deem it unwise to place so important and difficult a subject in the hands of a committee for disposal in fifteen minutes.

"We recommend that renewed efforts be made to reach the individual members of the Jewish congregations throughout the United States in order to enlist the interest of the great body of the Jews in this country."

The report was adopted.

Mr. Hackenburg suggested to the Board of Directors that so important a question as the Bible Fund be referred to a committee some time before the meeting.

Nominations and Elections

To succeed the following as Honorary Vice-Presidents, whose terms expire—J. L. Gatzert, of Chicago; Mrs. Jacob H. Hecht, of Boston; Joseph Hirsh, of Vicksburg, Miss.; Nathan Morris, of Indianapolis; and Simon Wolf, of Washington, D. C.—the Committee on Nominations presented the names of the following nominees: Mr. Isaac W. Bernheim, of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Jacob H. Hecht, of Boston; Mr. Joseph Hirsh, of Vicksburg, Miss.; Mrs. Henry Solomon, of Chicago; and Mr. Simon Wolf, of Washington, D. C.

The Secretary was instructed to cast a ballot for the nominees, and they were declared duly elected.

The Committee on Nominations completed its report by the nomination of the following: Dr. Henry M. Leipziger, of New York, for Vice-President, for one year, and Mr. Herman S. Friedman for Second Vice-President, for one year.

The Secretary cast the ballot of the meeting for the nominees and they were duly declared elected.

Dr. A. Friedenwald moved the thanks of the meeting to the Temple Keneseth Israel for the use of the Assembly Room. Unanimously agreed to.

On motion, the meeting adjourned.

CHARTER

The terms of the charter are as follows:

The name of the corporation is THE JEWISH PUBLICATION SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

The said corporation is formed for the support of a benevolent educational undertaking, namely, for the publication and dissemination of literary, scientific and religious works, giving instruction in the principles of the Jewish religion, which are to be distributed among the members of the corporation, and to such other persons and institutions as may use the same in the promotion of benevolent educational work.

The business of said corporation is to be transacted in the city and county of Philadelphia.

The corporation is to exist perpetually.

There is no capital stock, and there are no shares of stock.

The corporation is to be managed by a Board of Trustees, consisting of fifteen members, and by the following officers: President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer, and such other officers as may from time to time be necessary.

BY-LAWS

ARTICLE I

Membership

SECTION I.—The Society shall be composed of Annual Members, Patrons, Friends and Life Members. Any person of the Jewish faith may become a Member by paying annually the sum of three dollars ($3), or a Patron by the annual payment of twenty dollars ($20), or a Friend by the annual payment of fifty dollars ($50), or a Life Member by one payment of one hundred dollars ($100).

SEC. II.—Any Jewish society may become a Member by the annual payment of ten dollars ($10).

SEC. III.—Any person may become a Subscriber by the annual payment of three dollars ($3), which entitles him or her to all the publications of the Society to which members are entitled.

ARTICLE II

Meetings

SECTION I.—The annual meeting of this Society shall be held in the month of May, the day of such meeting to be fixed by the Directors at their meeting in the previous March.

SEC. II.—Special meetings may be held at any time at the call of the President, or by a vote of a majority of the Board of Directors, or at the written request of fifty members of the Society.

ARTICLE III

Officers and their Duties

SECTION I.—There shall be fifteen Directors, to be elected by the Society by ballot.

At the first meeting all of the said fifteen shall be elected, five of them to serve for one year, five for two years, and five for three years, and at every subsequent annual meeting five shall be elected for three years.

SEC. II.—Out of the said fifteen, the Society shall annually elect a President, Vice-President, and Second Vice-President, who shall hold their offices for one year.

SEC. III.—The Society shall also elect fifteen Honorary Vice-Presidents, in the same manner and for the same terms of office as the Directors are chosen.

SEC. IV.—The Board of Directors shall elect a Treasurer, a Secretary, and such other officers as they may from time to time find necessary or expedient for the transaction of the Society's business.

SEC. V.—The Board of Directors shall appoint its own committees, including a Publication Committee, which committee may consist in whole or in part of members of the Board.

The Publication Committee shall serve for one year.

ARTICLE IV

Quorum

SECTION I.—Forty members of the Society shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

ARTICLE V

Vacancies

SECTION I.—The Board of Directors shall have power to fill all vacancies for unexpired terms.

ARTICLE VI

Benefits

SECTION I.—Every member of the Society shall receive a copy of each of its publications. Contributing societies shall receive a number of copies of said publications proportionate to the amount of their annual subscriptions.

ARTICLE VII

Free Distribution

SECTION I.—The Board of Directors is authorized to distribute copies of the Society's publications among such institutions as may be deemed proper, and wherever such distribution may be deemed productive of good for the cause of Israel.

ARTICLE VIII

Auxiliaries

SECTION I.—Other associations for a similar object may be made auxiliary to this Society, by such names and in such manner as may be directed by the Board of Directors, and shall have the privilege of representation at meetings. Agencies for the sale and distribution of the Society's publications shall be established by the Board of Directors in different sections of the country. The Society shall have the right to establish branches.

ARTICLE IX

Finances

SECTION I.—Moneys received for life memberships, and donations and bequests for such purpose, together with such other moneys as the Board of Directors may deem proper, shall constitute a permanent fund, but the interest of such fund may be used for the purposes of the Society.

ARTICLE X

Amendments

These By-Laws may be altered or amended by a vote of two-thirds of those entitled to vote at any meeting of the Society; provided that thirty days' notice be given by the Board of Directors, by publication, to the members of the Society.

PUBLICATIONS

JEWISH PUBLICATION SOCIETY OF AMERICA

HISTORY

HISTORY OF THE JEWS.—By PROFESSOR H. GRAETZ. $2.00 per volume. $9.00 per set of 6 volumes.

VOL. I. FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF SIMON THE MACCABEE (135 B. C. E.). 553 pp.

VOL. II. FROM THE REIGN OF HYRCANUS TO THE COMPLETION OF THE BABYLONIAN TALMUD (500 C. E.). 656 pp.

VOL. III. FROM THE COMPLETION OF THE BABYLONIAN TALMUD TO THE BANISHMENT OF THE JEWS FROM ENGLAND (1290 C. E.). 675 pp.

VOL. IV. FROM THE RISE OF THE KABBALA (1270 C. E.) TO THE PERMANENT SETTLEMENT OF THE MARRANOS IN HOLLAND (1648 C. E.). 743 pp.

VOL. V. FROM THE CHMIELNICKI PERSECUTION IN POLAND (1648 C. E.) TO THE PRESENT TIME. 766 pp.

VOL. VI. CONTAINING A MEMOIR OF THE AUTHOR BY DR. PHILIPP BLOCH, AN INDEX TO THE FIVE VOLUMES, MAPS, AND A CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE OF JEWISH HISTORY. 644 pp.

"Professor Graetz is the historiographer par excellence of the Jews. His work, at present the authority upon the subject of Jewish history, bids fair to hold its pre-eminent position for some time, perhaps decades."—Preface to Index Volume.

OUTLINES OF JEWISH HISTORY. From the Return from Babylon to the Present Time.—By Lady MAGNUS. Revised by M. FRIEDLÄNDER. With three Maps, a Frontispiece, and Chronological Tables. 388 pp. Library Edition, $1.00; School Edition, 75 cents.

"The entire work is one of great interest; it is written with moderation, and yet with a fine enthusiasm for the great race which is set before the reader's mind."—Atlantic Monthly.

CHAPTERS ON JEWISH LITERATURE.—By ISRAEL ABRAHAMS. 275 pp. $1.25.

"The author has performed his task with admirable taste and judgment. He has written a primer of Jewish literature, it is true, an elementary manual, so to speak, but it is agreeably free from the faults of abruptness and fragmentariness so common to that class of booklets. . . . It is not a mere bibliography, nor is it a collection of names and works; but a sketch in outline, warmed by the author's sympathetic treatment and enriched by his suggestive genius."—Jewish Messenger.

A SKETCH OF JEWISH HISTORY.—By GUSTAV KARPELES. 109 pp. Boards. 30 cents. (Special Series No. 5.)

"Dr. Karpeles's standpoint is a sane one, and his intimate acquaintance with the details of his subject has in no degree confused his sketch of the general development."—Critic.

JEWISH LIFE IN THE MIDDLE AGES.—By ISRAEL ABRAHAMS. 452 pp. $1.75.

"Mr. Abrahams has really done a very good and useful piece of work. He has taken up one side of mediæval life, and given us the means of getting a thorough understanding of it."—Bookman.

OLD EUROPEAN JEWRIES.—By DAVID PHILIPSON. 281 pp. $1.25.

"Philipson's book is a very valuable historical and ethnographical contribution."—GUSTAV KARPELES, Allgemeine Zeitung des Judenthums.

THE PERSECUTION OF THE JEWS IN RUSSIA.—87 pp. Paper. 25 cents. (Special Series No. 1.)

"The pamphlet is full of facts, and will inform people very fully in regard to the basis of the complaints made by the Jews against Russia."—Public Opinion.

ESSAYS AND MISCELLANEOUS WORKS

THE ETHICS OF JUDAISM.—By Professor M. LAZARUS, Ph. D. Translated from the German by Henrietta Szold. Complete in four parts. Part I. Foundation of Jewish Ethics. 309 pp. $1.25.

"It is hoped . . . that when completed it will serve to make clear the inner ife of Judaism, as the History of Graetz portrayed the part which the Jews nave played in the world."—Preface.

JEWISH SERVICES IN SYNAGOGUE AND HOME.—By LEWIS N. DEMBITZ. 487 pp. $1.75.

"A work which will keep up the knowledge and remembrance of the devotional life of the Jews as it was in the past, and of the liturgical literature as it evolved throughout ages and in various countries."—Jewish Spectator.

STUDIES IN JUDAISM.—By S. SCHECHTER. 359 pp. $1.75.

"Mr. Schechter is one of the few men whom we possess to-day who seem to understand that to popularize Judaism is not unworthy of the greatest scholar."—EMIL G. HIRSCH, Reform Advocate.

JEWISH LITERATURE AND OTHER ESSAYS.—By GUSTAV KARPELES. 404 pp. $1.25.

"The essays have the charm of an attractive style, combined with a subject of great and varied interest."—Independent.

SABBATH HOURS. Thoughts.—By LIEBMAN ADLER. 338 pp. $1.25.

"Rabbi Adler was a man of strong and fertile mind, and his sermons are eminently readable."—Sunday School Times.

SOME JEWISH WOMEN.—By HENRY ZIRNDORF. 270 pp. $1.25.

"The side-lights which this book casts upon rabbinic life and thought will attract readers."—Critic.

THE TALMUD.—By ARSÈNE DARMESTETER. Translated from the French by HENRIETTA SZOLD. Boards. 30 cents. (Special Series No. 4.)

"Few persons know what 'The Talmud' signifies. The booklet, with this title, ... is multum in parvo on this theme. That stupendous library of rabbinic lore is here described with a fulness and a clearness not surpassed in many larger and more pretentious works."—Dial.

THE TALMUD.—Reprinted from the "Literary Remains" of EMANUEL DEUTSCH. Boards. 30 cents. (Special Series No. 3.)

"When first published . . . made its author, then one of the under-librarians at the British Museum, famous, and still remains an admirable short study."—Atlantic Monthly.

READINGS AND RECITATIONS. For Jewish Homes and Schools.—Compiled by ISABEL E. COHEN. 294 pp. $1.25.

"This book should be found in every Jewish home; it should find its way into every Jewish Sabbath-school; for none will lay it aside without feeling that a religion which could intone such songs and inspire such bards has every claim upon the intelligent reverence of those in its household born."—EMIL G. HIRSCH, Reform Advocate.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE FIRST CONVENTION OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF JEWISH WOMEN (New York, 1896). 426 pp. $1.00.

PAPERS OF THE JEWISH WOMEN'S CONGRESS (Chicago, 1893). 270 pp. $1.00.

FICTION

UNDER THE EAGLE'S WING.—By SARA MILLER. Illustrated. 229 pp. 75 cents.

"It is a story of the days of Maimonides. . . . The author is to be commended for her book, that abounds in stirring incidents and is written with considerable ability."—Jewish Messenger.

THEY THAT WALK IN DARKNESS. Ghetto Tragedies.—By I. ZANGWILL. 486 pp. $1.50. Sold to Members only.

"While the tragic issue of each of these remarkable stories is inevitable, they are illumined by flashes of fancy, satire, irony, and humor. No reader who is not blinded by prejudice will rise from the perusal of this engrossing volume without an enhanced sense of compassion for, and admiration of, the singular race of whose traits and temperament Mr. Zangwill is perhaps the most gifted interpreter."—Spectator, London.

LOST PRINCE ALMON.—By LOUIS PENDLETON. Illustrated. 218 pp. 75 cents.

"It is a charmingly written story of the little Prince Jehoash, son of Ahaziah, whom the Prince Jehoiada had rescued from the clutches of Athaliah. . . . Our Sunday-school literature is so extremely poor that we hail this volume with particular delight, and we predict that it will soon be one of the most popular gift books for Jewish children."—Jewish Voice.

DREAMERS OF THE GHETTO.—By I. ZANGWILL. 537 pp. $1.50. Sold to Members only.

"With marvelous industry, and with no small amount of erudition, he has packed together into the scenes dealing with Uriel Acosta, Sabbatai Zevi, Spinoza, the Baal Shem, Maimon, Heine, Lassalle and Beaconsfield, just those incidents and sayings of their careers which bring out most clearly their Jewish aspects."—JOSEPH JACOBS, Bookman.

IN THE PALE. Stories and Legends of the Russian Jews.—By HENRY ILIOWIZI. 367 pp. $1.25.

"Henry Iliowizi . . . is a master of both humor and pathos, as is shown in his book of stories and legends entitled 'In the Pale.'"—Sunday School Times.

CHILDREN OF THE GHETTO.—By I. ZANGWILL. 2 vols. 451 pp., 325 pp. $2.50.

"Nowhere else have been given us more realistic pictures of the shabbiness, the unwholesomeness, the close-packed human misery, the squalor, the vulgarity, the sharp struggle in the mean competition of life, in the East End of London. . . . [But] there is a world of poetry, of dreams, of imagination, of high calling, of intellectual subtlety even, in which sordid London, not Jewish, has no part nor lot."—CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER, Harper's Magazine.

RABBI AND PRIEST.—By MILTON GOLDSMITH. 314 pp. $1.00.

"The author has attempted to depict faithfully the customs and practices of the Russian people and government in connection with the Jewish population of that country. The book is a strong and well-written story."—Public Opinion.

THINK AND THANK.—By S. W. COOPER. Illustrated. 120 pp. 50 cents.

"Sir Moses Montefiore is the hero of this story. . . . 'Think and Thank' will please boys, and it will be found popular in Sunday-school libraries."—New York Herald.

VOEGELE'S MARRIAGE AND OTHER TALES.—By LOUIS SCHNABEL. 83 pp. Paper. 25 cents. (Special Series No. 2.)

"'The False Turn' is a charming little sketch, and the humor of it very delicate and amusing. 'Voegele's Marriage' I find also very artistic and interesting."—EMMA LAZARUS.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK FOR 5661 (1900-1901)

PRICE $1.00 POSTPAID

AMERICAN JEWISH YEAR BOOK for 5660 (1899–1900).—Edited by CYRUS ADLER. 290 pp. 75 cents.

"This is the first general year book of the Jewish institutions of America. Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, President of the Montefiore Home:—"The wish to which I give expression, that the paper may continue to prosper, voices not only my own, but the general sentiments of the community."

Zadoc Kahn, Grand Rabbi of France:—"Your journal has won for itself a prominent place in American Judaism; in fact, in Judaism the world over."

Hon. Oscar S. Straus, Minister to Turkey:—"During my residence in Turkey your paper served to keep me au courant with the affairs of the Jewish community at home."

Anatole Leroy-Beaulieu, Paris, France:—"I read The American Hebrew regularly and always with both interest and profit to myself. It is a sheet which does honor to Judaism and to the United States."

Richard Grant White, in his last book, "The Fate of Mansfield Humphreys," said:—"There is a weekly journal, published in New York, marked in some of its articles by that union of subtility, strength and breadth of view which are the intellectual characteristics of the race to which it is addressed, and which is called The American Hebrew."

The Late Baroness de Hirsch, to Mrs. Rebekah Kohut:—"Tell The American Hebrew editors that I rely upon their paper for information concerning the Jews and the Jewish institutions of America."
